

A TWO CAR ACCIDENT at the intersection of Kathleen and Scott at 11 this morning resulted in injuries to the drivers of both cars. Mrs. Raymert Miller, wife of city manager Raymert Miller and Mrs. Dick Crone were both taken by ambulance to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital where their condition is unknown. Police had no details on the accident.

Public Service Rates Cut

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Union Electric Co. of St. Louis asked for permission to raise its rates $21, 495,000 a year but the Missouri Public Service Commission has slashed that by more than 75 per cent.

In an order issued Friday, a year after getting the request, the commission authorized Union Electric to raise its annual gross revenue no more than $5,352,984. The company is expected to file the new rates by Dec. 10.

The PSC suggested that the company increase almost all its rates 2.47 per cent across the board.

The commission rejected a company proposal to pass on to all customers any increases in fuel costs without prior PSC approval. The commission said that practice should continue to be limited to industrial and commercial rates.

The commission also rejected a request to charge higher rates for five summer months instead of the usual four months.

Union Electric was criticized for excessive costs in construction of the Labadie generating plant, which opened in June, 1970. The PSC ordered an investigation of the cost overrun, and also an inquiry into plans for a new plant at Rush Island, Jefferson County.

PTA Sets Meeting

The Parent Teachers Association will meet 7:30 Monday night in the high school cafeteria.

Students in the vocational school will present the program for the meeting demonstrating skills learned in the school and explaining the various programs available.

The concert choir will make their first appearance of the year as they entertain for the organization.

E.P. Man Returned

CHARLESTON — Charles Coffey of rural East Prairie was returned to the Mississippi County jail Friday from St. Louis by Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons. Simmons said St. Louis detectives picked up Coffey for Mississippi county authorities on a charge of issuing a bad check, filed in May.

Charges Expected

CHARLESTON — Charges of breaking, entering and stealing are expected to be filed today against Robert Earl Corbin, 25, Jerry Corbin, 22, and Danny Corbin, 20, all of Charleston, according to Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons.

The men were arrested early today in the apartment of their mother, Mrs. Mildred George, by police officers Robert Smith and Bill Groves.

According to Simmons police were called by Mrs. Janet Carden who reported a break-in at her apartment, 804 S. School St. Mrs. Carden reportedly told officers she suspected the Corbin men of entering her apartment. A search of Mrs. George's apartment, in the same building, revealed the stolen liquor and food items.

The men are being held in the Mississippi County jail.

Woman Charged After Accident

MARSTON — An 18-year-old Marston woman was charged with careless and imprudent driving Friday when the car she was driving went out of control and struck a second vehicle.

Highway patrol officials said Paulette Robinson, 18, of Portageville, was northbound on highway 61, one mile south of Marston Friday morning when she struck a southbound 61 International pickup truck driven by James Williams, 23, of Portageville.

The woman received minor cuts and a right shoulder injury. The man was apparently not injured.

More Telephones

There are 821 more telephones in use in the city this year than last year. These were the figures given by Southwest Bell manager Mark Rudloff.

Rudloff said the new lines represents a 7.8 per cent increase over last year.

This time last year there were 1,166 main lines in use for business customers and 1,031 extensions making a total of 2,197 business phones. In the new telephone directories recently released, there are 1,223 main business lines and 1,084 extensions for a total of 2,307 business lines.

The total business increase is five per cent.

Residential telephone usage has also increased from 5,515 main lines and 2,745 extensions last year to 5,879 main lines and 3,092 extensions this year. This is an 8.6 per cent increase over the past year.

Jewelry Store Hit

NEW MADRID — Thieves Thursday night entered LeSueur Jewelry store, 319 Main, avoiding a burglar alarm system by cutting a hole through the roof and going through an air conditioner duct.

In a preliminary check, items reported stolen were a .22 calibre rifle, .22 calibre revolver, 50 cigarette lighters, 15 necklaces, one tray of wedding bands, four clocks and one tray of masonic rings.

An attempt to crack a safe was thwarted when a tear gas mechanism was touched off and the thieves fled.

Gus LeSueur, owner, discovered the break-in at 8:30 a. m. today. Deputy sheriff Walter Ivy and the state highway patrol are investigating.

Bruce Names Burns

Thurman Burns

Police chief Arthur Bruce today named Sgt. Thurman Burns as training officer for the city police force.

Burns' duties will include initiating a training program within the department apparently as a result of city manager Raymert Miller's controversial investigation into the department.

Following Miller's investigation in October, the lack of a training program within the city force was pinpointed as a major weakness of the department. Bruce was given the responsibility of beginning the program.

Bruce described the program as a "continuing program so that all officers will receive adequate training and periodic refresher courses in all phases of police work."

Burns has been assigned an office in the newly remodeled city administrative offices on New Madrid to be used as a classroom.

Bruce also said that arrangements are being made for a departmental firing range, which Burns will also head.

Nixon Ponders Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is spending the weekend pondering a full employment budget even as the labor Department reports unemployment jumped up to 6 per cent in November after a two months decline.

White House officials in Key Biscayne, Fla., where Nixon is reviewing his fiscal 1973 budget, said Friday the President's decision is virtually certain to result in deficit spending.

Under the full employment concept, forecasts of how much revenue the government will have to spend are based on the theory that unemployment will not exceed 4 per cent. If unemployment exceeds that rate, a deficit results.

The unemployment rate has hovered around 6 per cent for the past year. It was 6.1 per cent in August, 6 per cent in September and 5.8 per cent in October.

The November jump in the unemployment rate—the ratio of job seekers to job holders—came even while the total number of working Americans rose to an all-time high of 80 million persons.

The White House called the increase in the unemployment rate unwelcome and Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson said it was unacceptable.

In releasing figures on another economic indicator, the government announced the index of wholesale prices increased 0.1 per cent last month.

But Herbert J. Stein, new chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, noted that the index showed an overall decline for the three months of the wage-price freeze imposed Aug. 15 by President Nixon.

The index declined 0.2 per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis or 0.3 per cent on an actual basis between September and November.

Naval Historian Will

Re-Trace Magellan's Course

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Samuel Eliot Morison, the famed naval historian, who is a hale 84 years old, plans to retrace by air and sea the first circumnavigation of the globe by Ferdinand Magellan 452 years ago.

The veteran author will be accompanied on the marathon journey by his friend Mauricio Obregon, a former Colombian diplomat, airman and explorer.

Morison is well grounded for the two-month trip. More than three decades ago he explored the Caribbean islands in a sailboat in order to write about the exploits of Christopher Columbus "from the clear blue water of experience."

The sea has always been an obsession of Morison who won the Pulitzer Prize in 1942 with his two-volume biography of Columbus, "Admiral of the Ocean Sea." The noted Harvard scholar also wrote the classic 15-volume history of "U.S. Naval Operations of World War II."

The impending Morison voyage will provide a sequel to his latest book, "The European Discovery of America: the Northern Voyages" published last April. The planned new book will include passages on the southern explorations of such navigators as Sir Francis Drake and Juan Sebastian Elcano, the Spanish skipper who completed the global voyage after Magellan was slain by natives in the Philippines.

Morison's crew will include James F. Neilds, a Massachusetts textile manufacturer who flew the admiral up and down the North American coast to help him get material for his last book.

The writer and his party hope to duplicate the journey that Magellan began in 1519 from San Lucar near Seville with a fleet of five small vessels. The voyage was finally completed by Elcano with one vessel and only 18 survivors of the 270 who originally set out.

Obregon has already made a start on the new adventure, retracing the Magellan voyage from Seville to the Cape Verde Islands. Morison plans to join him early in December in Recife in the northern part of Brazil. This was the first New World landfall of Magellan's fleet. Morison and Obregon expect to head southwards to Rio de Janeiro, then Buenos Aires and then down the Argentine coast and across the straits. Neilds plans to join them there.

From that point, the party will journey up the coast of Chile and then 15,000 miles across the Pacific to Puka Puka, the Philippines, and the Spice Islands.

Picking up Elcano's trail they will span the Indian Ocean and round the tip of Africa for the voyage back to Spain.

Berlin Deadlock

BERLIN (AP) — The East-West Berlin wall talks deadlocked today.

There was no word when they would be resumed, although it was expected to be soon.

The West Berlin city parliament's Council of Elders met at the request of the Free Democratic party, which is seeking to block approval of the wall passage details as now formulated.

The Free Democrats, minor but pivotal partners in Bonn of Chancellor Willy Brandt's coalition, said they will not accept an agreement that limits West Berliners to only 30 visits a year to East Berlin or East Germany.

A party spokesman said such restrictions violated the letter and spirit of the four power deal on Berlin which the German talks are to implement.

Neither Claim Declaration

India, Pakistan At War

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indian forces struck in East Pakistan today and the government claimed they were advancing rapidly in a drive to establish an independent state and force the 80,000 Pakistani troops there to surrender.

The Indians acknowledged, however, that they had lost some territory in fighting along the border of West Pakistan, 1,000 miles to the west. The Indian air force launched air raids against eight key airfields in West Pakistan.

India accused Pakistan of declaring war. Without mentioning any declaration, President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan of Pakistan charged that India had begun the war and in a broadcast told his countrymen it was time "to give a crushing reply to the enemy."

He said the Indian raiders met little opposition during their morning-long strikes, and that all of them had returned safely to their bases.

The spokesman said Indian air force planes also had been attacking military installations inside East Pakistan since early today, and that heavy fighting is going in most sections of the province. He said the thrust was aimed at helping the Bengali secessionists set up a government of their own inside East Pakistan.

He said Indian air force fighters and Pakistani jets engaged in numerous dogfights over East Pakistan and that seven Pakistani Sabre jets were shot down, four near Dacca and three near Jessore. The spokesman said no Indian planes had been downed.

But Radio Pakistan reported that 33 Indian planes were shot down in different sectors of East and West Pakistan.

United News of India reported that the Indian navy had intercepted a Pakistani ship, but did not say where.

Monitors in India said Yahya made no mention in his broadcast address from Karachi of a formal declaration of war against India.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi earlier told the Indian Parliament that "this morning the government of West Pakistan declared war upon us." She did not say what form the declaration took, but United News of India quoted Pakistan radio reports as saying it was published in an extraordinary government gazette in Islamabad, the Pakistani capital.

Foreign Secretary T. N. Kaul told a news conference in New Delhi that India had not yet declared war on Pakistan, but added:

"We are going to assert our right to self defense and we shall take every appropriate action to safeguard the integrity and the sovereignty of the country."

Defense Secretary K. B. Lal told the same news

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
Some people use their tongues the way a foolish man handles a gun.

SCHOOL CONSOLIDATION
School district reorganization has kept many of the nation's schools in a state of turmoil. Few topics on education stimulate as much heated discussion as school district consolidation or unification. And for good reason. What other local governmental action can affect the lives of so many people in a community in so many ways? Communities are built around schools. The local school district in the country's smaller communities is the center of interest and a major source of pride. How many communities dissolved after losing their local schools through unification?

There is no magic number of students which will assure the optimum in educational opportunities for children and youth. Geography, population density, and financial resources are some factors which must be considered in deciding what kind of school system a community wishes to provide. In some sparsely populated areas of the nation it would be virtually impossible to assemble up to 200 or 300 students in one attendance center. Great distances involving long bus routes make consolidation impractical. Yet there are numerous urban areas where population patterns, geography and resources warrant sizeable districts with large attendance centers.

Anytime a taxpayer is asked to surrender his voice by a reduction in the extent he is represented in governmental affairs, he should view such a proposal with the utmost skepticism. What are the motives behind the request? In the case of school mergers — are better educational programs and greater economy the real goals of the advocates — or, are their goals a wider tax base, a bigger, often bungling bureaucracy; and more power with less interference from taxpayers?

A hobby is hard work you wouldn't be doing for a living — right?

GAMES PEOPLE PLAY

Children's toys are safer this year than last, the Food and Drug Administration concluded in a report issued just in time for Christmas shopping. That is, they are less likely than before to cause bodily injury. Even so, Boston lawyer Edward M. Swartz estimates in his book Toys that Don't Care that 700,000 youngsters are hurt by their own playthings each year. A related and more difficult question is whether toys and games now on the market are psychologically safe. There are indications that, in some cases, the answer is "No."

"You should use caution with gimmicky, heavily advertised toys," asserts Dr. Carol Seefeldt of the University of Maryland's Early Childhood Education Center. She believes that "overly realistic toys don't help the child's development." Some of them may even warp normal development. One example is a torture kit, advertised as "X-rated for excitement," which includes a guillotine, spike cage, branding iron and other devices for use on a gore-painted doll.

Certain games aimed at the teen-age and young-adult markets may serve to reinforce undesirable personality traits. It is sometimes argued that the long-time favorite, Monopoly, encourages greed and ruthlessness in those who play it. Now Parker Brothers, which produced Monopoly sets, has come up with a new game that is certain to cause controversy. It is called The Godfather, and comes in a box shaped like a small violin case. On the playing board, the island of Manhattan is divided into neighborhoods. "The object of the game," the instructions say, "is to take control of a racket — bookmaking, extortion, loan sharking or hijacking — in as many neighborhoods as possible."

And then there are all the World War II games marketed by the Avalon Hill Co. These include, among many others, Blitzkrieg, Luftwaffe, Stalingrad, D-Day, and Origins of World War II. The games involve actual battle situations, are intellectually demanding, and can take many hours to play. Nevertheless, a Washington, D.C., psychiatrist believes that such games may be more than simply diverting. "War games," he says, "and especially those that show identification with a powerful military aggressor, even, perhaps, with the master race, have a very strong appeal for certain types of people."

The editor is in receipt of a letter from D. W. Gilmore, Chairman of the State Reorganization Commission and he enclosed with it a book showing their suggestions. We have looked through it very carefully and notice that it is worthwhile, but I don't think that the legislators will do anything about it, since the only changes they seem to be interested in is raising their salary. Maybe after the election they might do something with it. But, rather than just comment on it we want to reproduce here an editorial run in the Post Dispatch about it. We believe that parts of this editorial are right down our alley. Part of it we don't agree with, but maybe somebody else will.

The Fragmented State Government
Anyone taking a comprehensive view of Missouri state government, as the State Reorganization Commission has just done, would wonder where to start in bringing order out of confusion. The place where the "Little Hoover" commission chose to start was, logically, at the top — with the executive branch. It is a branch with branches, limbs and twigs, but not as well constructed as a tree. The commission calls most state departments "mere paper assemblages of agencies." Just as one example, the Department of Education has no overall head and includes 30 elements reporting separately to the governor.

The result of such a jerry-built structure is that no governor can have proper knowledge or responsibility for the workings of his part of the government, and the public itself often cannot find out where the real responsibility lies. Aside from that, the system or lack of one is inefficient, unduly costly and unresponsive to changing and growing state needs for public service.

To provide for executive responsibility and public responsiveness, as well as efficiency, the commission proposes to reorganize the entire executive branch into 10 departments based on like functions. One result would be to replace the existing 87 lines of authority running directly to the governor to 10. Moreover, the new Office of Administration ("deputy governor") would aid the chief executive in overseeing daily operations, freeing him for policy supervision.

As examples of how functional reorganization would work, the Highway Patrol would be taken from the Highway Department and given to a new Public Safety Department; the Highway Department itself would be enlarged into a Department of Highways and Transportation; and the Department of Education would be cut in two, one part serving higher education and one primary and secondary education.

Functional reorganization has not dictated radical departures from what state experience has proved wise. Of the 10 departments, six would be directed by supervisors named by the governor, and four would be operated by boards similarly appointed. Thus highways (and transportation) would remain under the guidance of a bipartisan commission, a system that has worked well for Missouri, and so would conservation, which would be expanded into the whole demanding field of natural resources.

At a time when the public is greatly concerned about taxes and many legislators are proclaiming the need for governmental savings and efficiency, the reorganization plan should have widespread support. The two constitutional amendments and single reorganization bill recommended by the commission deserve clear sailing in the Legislature and at the polls.

Even so, it would be unrealistic to think there will be no opposition, for the disorganization of state government is not all accidental. It results in part from legislative jealousy of executive power, and in part from public suspicion of governmental, including legislative, power. That is why the Constitution itself is so cluttered and why there are so many boards and commissions going their separate ways.

But that system does not work well, and it will not work any better in the future as the state grows and its government inevitably grows with it. One way to assure better public control of that government is to make its administration answerable to the one governor that the public elects to administer it. That is the proper starting point for state reorganization.

—Post Dispatch

LET'S FREEZE GOVERNMENT TOO

This editorial was published by the National Chamber as a full-page advertisement in three Washington newspapers as a means of informing the American people of the absolute need for reduced government spending. We reprint its message because we believe this same reasoning applies to local, county and state governments as well as the federal government:

A message addressed to the President and members of Congress...

Under the current program of controls and freezes, you are:

Asking working men and women to make sacrifices in holding down wage demands.

Asking businessmen to make sacrifices in holding down prices.

What sacrifices will government make? Government surely doesn't want to ask others to make sacrifices it isn't prepared to make itself. If your program to control inflation is to succeed, government must do two things:

1. Cut federal spending.
2. Restrain the creation of money through the Federal Reserve System.

It is unfair to control the economic decisions of people — while letting federal spending run rampant. Government must do its parts — it, too, must show self-discipline.

To halt inflation, Federal Government spending must be frozen — better yet, CUT, and the money supply restrained. Economic controls deal with the results of inflation. Frozen or reduced spending is one sure way to reduce inflationary pressures. As wage and price increases are deferred, so too should spending for new federal programs be deferred.

It is also time for Congress and all agencies of government to evaluate existing programs by their measurable results and get rid of the deadwood programs that have a proven record of ineffectiveness. Congress seldom reviews the need for legislation previously enacted.

Will you, Mr. President and members of Congress, face up to these needs?

Only you have the authority to investigate, hold hearings, ask questions and sit in judgment of these spending questions. If you don't know where and how to stop spending, then you should set up the proper mechanism to find the answers.

If the citizens of the United States must struggle under economic controls then government should, in all equity, restrain its own actions, with emphasis on reduced spending and a restrained money supply.

It is time for government to cooperate with the American taxpayer in this fight against inflation.

Mr. President and members of Congress, the responsibility is yours.

Advanced Step. In Dublin, after breaking a dance-course contract, Bertendren Brendan Green testified that Teacher Joy Russell-Smith had augmented her instruction with hugs and squeezes and given "the impression she was getting an affection for me," was nevertheless told by the court to pay Joy $84 damages.

When a man tells a dull story, he usually prefaces it by saying something like this: "I heard a funny story the other day. I know you will appreciate it." Then comes the dull story.

THE RIGHT TO REFRAIN
Hold your hat, and don't make any election bets yet. What may be one of the hottest issues of the campaign is about to hit the headlines, and it is an issue that could polarize public opinion sufficiently to influence the entire election.

The issue is an old one with a new twist. It is another phase of a problem which you perhaps thought was resolved in the 1966 campaigns, Right to Work. No, this is not a renewed attempt to repeal Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, although Vice-president Humphrey recently renewed his call for such repeal in a speech in Milwaukee.

What is at stake this time is a "Right to Refrain" law for federal employees. The proposed legislation would pass into law the language of an Executive Order issued in 1962 by then President John F. Kennedy, which said: "Employees of the Federal Government shall have, and shall be protected in the exercise of, the right, freely and without fear of penalty or reprisal, to form, join and assist any employee organization or to refrain from such activity."

The big union bosses have been wanting the "right to refrain" dropped. Since last September, one of those committees that President Johnson creates to look at every problem, has been reviewing the government's policy in its labor relations. It's been reported that the commission is going to recommend dropping the "right to refrain" thus delivering 3,000,000 Federal employees into the hands of the bosses who could begin extracting "fees," — comparable to union membership dues — each month. How big a war chest would that put into the hands of the labor bosses? Suppose the "fees" were $3 a month per employee? The take would be $9 million a month.

The bills have been introduced in the Senate and in the House by almost a score of sponsors in each. They would bar the possibility of labor bosses realizing such a harvest in event that President Johnson, or any succeeding President, shall repeal the Executive Order issued by President Kennedy. If the bills are not acted on in the present session, Reed Larsen, Executive Vice President of the National Right to Work Committee, has promised to take the issue to the voters by pressing every Congressional and Presidential candidate to make clear his position on passage of the legislation.

Two years ago, 47 Congressmen who opposed Right To Work went down to defeat. The Federal Freedom of Choice Act of 1968 may be even more decisive. It is difficult to see how any candidate or elected official can oppose the bill. But some will, because they are beholden to the labor bosses.

I would be counted one with those who keep A sacred trust with Thee on Christmas morn. As hallelujahs ring, as hearts awake, Let me rejoice to know that Thou art born, And that my heart is richer for Thy sake, Thou art a glory that will never fade, O Child within a manger gently laid. —Melva Rorem.

LOSE THIS DAY
Lose this day loitering — 'twill be the same story Tomorrow — and the next more dilatory, Then indecision brings its own delays And days are lost lamenting over days. Are you in earnest? Seize this very minute — What you can do, or dream you can, begin it, Only engage, and then the mind grows heated; Begin it, and the work will be completed. —Goethe.

SNOW-SANTA
Sometimes when snow has fallen fast, We make a snow-man jolly; And make him round - like Santa Claus — And deck him out with holly.

We put a clay-pipe in his mouth — And find a gunny-sack Which we fill up with ever-greens And put upon his back.

We use black coal to make his eyes — And one piece for his nose — And then we use whatever's left For buttons on his clothes.

Then all-us-children stomp and shout And circle 'round and 'round — While Santa Claus just stands and smiles And doesn't make a sound! —H.S.D.

PUBLIC CURIOUS ABOUT BANKS
The purpose of advertising is to tell the citizens of the trade territory about the store's business, its merchandise, prices and service. It cannot be left to a potential customer to guess what the store does, what its policy is, and what service it offers.

A bank in Carlisle, Penn., inserted two advertisements weekly in its newspaper to answer questions asked by the public on subjects connected with banking. Certainly there is no better way of telling the public what it wants to know, and getting more interest in store activities, than by answering customer questions. This idea could be profitably used by other business classifications. Insurance agents, stock brokers, realtors, public utilities, loan offices, and other business firms who seem to have a tough time making their advertising copy interesting could use the question and answer technique.

Questions can be obtained from customers in the store, by asking for letters or phone calls, and talking to salesmen, and clerks. No customer knows all about every business.

Smash Nixon Drive On: Meany's personal hatred of President strengthens Mayor Lindsay's chances of presidential nomination

WASHINGTON— Usually that one-man offensive platoon, George Meany, doesn't get gastric attacks — he gives them. He doesn't just battle a political opponent, he surrounds him — or them. He's a specialist in going for the political jugular — so much so that his steaming personal hatred for Richard Nixon has torn the AFL-CIO from its traditional, formal non-partisanship into what appears to be a pre-convention acceptance of any Democratic Presidential candidate — even New York Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Any previous insinuation that the AFL-CIO technically is anything but non-partisan has enraged the labor chief. Back in 1969 when the movement's executive council met in mid-winter session in Bal Harbour, Fla., one of its members, Bill Pollock, textile union leader, opined that something would have to be done to rebuild the Democratic party.

The 1969 session was held less than a month after Richard Nixon had taken office. Pollock observed that "we need to do something about revitalizing the Democratic party." Furious, Meany jumped him. Officially, Meany said, the Democratic party is no concern of the labor movement and under no circumstances should the labor movement do the work of the Democratic party.

Any insinuation of non-partisanship, thus, has been as sacrilegious in the national AFL-CIO headquarters as would be a testimonial dinner to Egypt's Sadat in the grand ballroom of Jerusalem's King David Hotel. But now the post-convention edition of the AFL-CIO news, a tabloid, is headlined "Nixon's '72 Defeat Emerges As Top Convention Theme." And inside: "Labor Tools Up For Nixon's '72 Ouster." Since it's axiomatic at any race track that you can't beat a horse with no horse — Meany and his movement have, it seems to me, done what comes unnaturally. They have given up their bargaining position. They have, in effect, pledged to take any candidate nominated by the Democratic convention. This may account for the absence of all but one political hopeful as an AFL-CIO convention speaker — a most unusual occurrence.

The unusual occurrence was Sen. George McGovern. He got the podium only to take a bow — but made a tasteless speech. But if the liberal McGovern could take time out of his senate appearances and votes, why could not Sens. Hubert Humphrey, Henry Jackson, Vance Hartke and Ed Muskie? Actually Hartke was all over the place. Humphrey was there for an interim Sunday night cocktail party and easily could have stayed over for an early Monday morning speech. Reports are that Iron Workers chief John Lyons was ready to give a banquet for Muskie but the latter was told not to come — at the last minute, And the word in labor circles is that Jackson is to get the widest exposure possible. Well, most of them sent telegrams. Why? Most of them could have made it without interfering with their votes in the Senate. The labor convention originally was scheduled to run through Tuesday, Nov. 23. Yet it was cut short at 4:05 p.m., Monday, Nov. 22. There can, of course, be many interpretations of all this. Insiders are saying that Meany did not want to show any favorites, nor did he want to dilute the intensity of the anti-Nixon hatred and mockery which hurtled from the platform. It seemed that leaders of the convention wanted it to be an anti-Nixon rally and that the presence of Democratic hopefuls would have given the appearance of a Democratic rally. Thus there were no accolades. The field is wide open. The track is dry and fast. Moving up now is towering John Lindsay. His power bases are the youth who jumped and squealed rapturously during the Kennedy campaigns; the black communities who see His Honor as "our man," the ultras who see even 1970 reformers as aged; and a whole gamut of libertarians who see Democratic national chairman Larry O'Brien as Genghis Khan. Yet Mayor Lindsay is suddenly developing labor support. Not too much. But the freeze is broken. He is in Phase Two. For example, on Dec. 13 he will be the guest of honor at a banquet thrown by the Greater Canton, Ohio, AFL-CIO Council. They expect some 1,600 guests. Council leader is W.E. Wyckoff, local steel union chief whose official title is Staff Representative for the United Steelworkers of America headed by the powerful I.W. (Abe) Abel. Some steel union politics have been working with Mayor Lindsay.

Big John Lindsay, the political switch hitter, also has powerful United Auto Workers support. There are other unions waiting to see what he does in some of the primaries. He could be the dark horse the Democrats have been searching for — handsome, sleek, articulate, neo-isolationist, hero of every poncho-clad crowd from Manhattan's East Village to San Francisco's western hills. Only George Meany's dislike of him has kept Lindsay from his own Phase Three — getting labor support. Meany did say he'd rather vote for Nixon than the New York Mayor. But that's over now. The personal hatred for Mr. Nixon has made political history.

Not in recent decades has Meany's labor movement declared war on a Presidential candidate before the national convention nominated him. Meany is the fiddler on the roof. But he has smacked tradition. It's a calculated risk. If he defeats Nixon he's the nation's most powerful civilian. If not...?

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON— Once again, the Federal Power Commission has been caught promoting higher profits for the gas millionaires instead of lower bills for the housewives. Last June, we told how Chairman John Nassikas had connived, in a Louisiana gas rate case, to jack up gas rates by an estimated $4 billion.

Now, Nassikas is shaking the money tree again for the gas millionaires. His latest sell-out was so blatant that federal anti-trust officials charged in a stinging secret memo that the FPC had tried to "discredit and ridicule" their efforts to protect the housewives' pocketbook.

The beneficiary of Nassikas's efforts is none other than El Paso Natural Gas Company. Even now, its lobbyists are scurrying around Capitol Hill drumming up support for a bill to give El Paso a monopoly the courts have refused to approve.

At stake is a multi-billion-dollar share of the western gas market. El Paso has been ordered three times by the Supreme Court to relinquish its western stranglehold, so homeowners can benefit from more competition on the price they pay for cooking and heating.

Attorney General John Mitchell, like his predecessors for 14 years, has fought doggedly for the housewives. He sent attorney John Dougherty to a recent Denver hearing to do battle with El Paso. Dougherty sought help from the FPC which, instead, sided with the great gas combine.

FPC DOUBLE-CROSS
Nassikas was represented in Denver by his general counsel, Gordon Gooch, who quietly encouraged a star witness, Weldon Thomas, to testify in favor of El Paso. This came as a jolt to Dougherty who had expected his fellow government attorney to cooperate with him. In a blistering secret report, Dougherty's boss, Joseph Saunders reported to anti-trust chief Richard McLaren: "Mr. Dougherty confided in me a belief we had been 'had.'"

The FPC staff had shown a willingness to cooperate, but Gooch "permitted" Mr. Dougherty contact only with him and no further direct contact with the FPC staff," reported Saunders.

The witness Thomas, under Gooch's prodding, "pictured the idea (of breaking up the El Paso monopoly) as an engineering nightmare, hopelessly expensive, which would involve heavy costs to...the consumer," continued Saunders' secret memo. "It is clear from the transcript that Mr. Gooch set out to 'blitz' the (anti-El Paso forces)." Indeed, several other attorneys...asked Mr. Dougherty whether Mr. Gooch was selling him out.

Thomas conceded, however, that he had done the investigating for his testimony in an El Paso plane with two El Paso experts to guide him. And Gooch admitted that "we accepted at face value all industry-furnished supply data."

District Court Judge Hatfield Chilson ruled against the consumers on this aspect of the case, although a ruling on more crucial matters is still awaited. Meanwhile, FPC tried to collect from the Justice Department for Thomas's expenses to testify against the consumers.

Footnote: Gordon Gooch, tough as a diamond drill, talked at length with my associate Les Whitten about the case. Said Gooch about the anti-trust officials, "They're entitled to their opinion, and the hell with them! We had a duty to tell it as we saw it. By God, I'm proud of the case we put in."

HAIR EMBROLIO
The latest developments in the military's Great Hair Embrolio (Snake it clear that the brass hats are more interested in what's on top of a man's head than what's in it.

We have already reported how the Army's close-cropped commander, Gen. William Westmoreland, took time out from his more pressing duties to dictate stern hair standards for GIs. We also told of the soldier at Ft. Meade, Md., who is awaiting court martial for a hairy nape.

Now we learn that teams of officers and noncoms at various posts around the country have been charged with the solemn mission of spying on and nabbing GIs who have been avoiding their barbers.

At Fort Bliss, Tex., for example, military officials have established "courtesy patrols" which are dedicated, according to the official decree, to improving "standards of appearance of all military personnel."

Wearing stormtrooper-style armbands marked "CP," the courtesy patrols roam about the post, stop automobiles, demand ID cards, note "uniform violations" and make "on-the-spot corrections."

An army spokesman claimed the courtesy patrols are "management tools" intended to check on "people who are taking care of unofficial business during duty time." He confirmed, however, that the patrols are also on the lookout for lengthy locks.

Even the weekend warriors of the Army Reserve are suffering the consequences of the Big Hair Scare. On October 8, Reserve Chief J. Milnor Roberts dispatched a memo ordering his commanders to trim some heads.

Quoting Gen. Westmoreland's original edict, Gen. Roberts instructed his subordinates that the published guidelines "represent the outer limits of neatness and grooming required the day before a haircut — not the day after.

No Make-Up Presents Funny Face Problem

Dear Ann Landers: I am driving 30 miles to mail this letter. I'd die if anyone knew about my problem.

I have been married seven months and my husband has never seen me without make-up. I do my face twice a day -- once at noon and again before I go to bed at night. It takes me about 40 minutes --including hair combing. I just learned that I am pregnant and I'm very excited about it. I realize, however, that with a brand new baby I won't have so much free time. Also I admit I am getting awfully tired playing the role of the 24-hour beauty. It's darned exhausting.

My problem is, Ann, I look like a totally different person with my make-up off. I hate for my husband to see how plain I really am. Do you have any advice for me? --Afraid To Unmask

Dear Afraid: Something is drastically wrong with your marriage if you are so dependent on make-up that you are afraid to face your husband without it. Also something is drastically wrong with your make-up if it makes you look like a different person.

I hope the new baby will give you the confidence you need to remove your make-up at night and leave it off until or unless you are going somewhere. Also, I suggest that you get professional counseling on the use of make-up.

Cosmetics should help to accentuate your best features instead of making you look like a different person.

Dear Ann Landers: We've been married ten years and have four children. The problem is my parents. They have been coming to our house every Sunday for the last two years when we moved to this neighborhood. My mother takes over the conversation and always manages to get into an argument with my husband. He told me the other day that he is sick of it and I don't blame him.

Gerry works hard six days a week and Sunday is the only day he can relax and enjoy his family. Is it fair that we have to have my folks here every single Sunday? How can I get the message across without driving them away forever? -- Temple, Texas Woes.

Dear Temp: Make plans now for next Sunday. Inform your mother that you'll be away. Two weeks later -- the same. Two weeks after that get on a new footing -- "We'll let you know, etc." Your Sundays will never be your own unless you break the cycle. It's a mistake to let anyone assume they have really want them that often. Yeah -- this goes for parents, too.

Dear Ann Landers: O.K. So a wife is supposed to forgive her husband who cheats in Vietnam. Ann Landers says so.

But what about the woman's "physical needs" as you put it. While her soldier husband is finding companionship and solace overseas what is SHE supposed to do? And don't give me that old mid-Victorian eyewash about a man's needs being greater than a woman's. You know better. The question is this: If she does likewise, is she to be forgiven too? A yes or a no will do. -- The Scarlet Letter

Dear Scarlet: The answer is yes. Thanks for making my Saturday work easy.

Confidential to Marijuana Beat: Sorry, you're wrong. Gene Krupa, one of the greatest drummers of all time said pot did nothing for his musical ability --it only loused him up.

Is Alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet "Alcoholism -- Hope And Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WITH A LITTLE HELP FROM MY FRIENDS! Robb Linsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Gazette, celebrated his seventh birthday last Saturday afternoon. Assisting with the candle-blowing were Bradley Harrison, Marc Blazer, Carrie Storey and Christopher Stewart.

Panthers Claim BHS Title

BERNIE — If you didn't catch the championship game of the 11th annual Mules invitational basketball tournament Friday night, mark Dec. 7 on your calendar. That's the date the two New Madrid county rivals clash in what may be classified as an instant replay of Friday night's contest that was claimed by Lilbourn 73-69 over Matthews. The casts are likely to be the same, but the outcome could be different, but coach Larry Warren's cagers hold the advantage because they will host the bout. Friday night's battle was a typical match of the two New Madrid county powers. Both showed strong rebounding, tough defense and deadly shooting, but a defensive lapse in the third quarter proved fatal for the Pirates. The Daily Standard's sixth ranked Panthers rushed from a 37-28 halftime deficit into a 54-51 lead with a big 26 point explosion against the paper's seventh ranked Pirates. Matthews led most of the contest after grabbing an 18-12 lead in the first period, they increased that margin to nine points by half and looked as if the game was well in hand before Lilbourn returned from a halftime discussion with coach Larry Warrennd pressed its way into the lead, using a fast moving fast break to close the

before David Williams iced the victory with five seconds left with a pair of free shots after being fouled moments after the Pirates failed to tie the score on a pair of charity shots. Tommy Wells put in 26 points to head the victory march of Lilbourn while Raymond Bledsoe and Gary McWaters headed up the Pirates offense with 17 markers.

"We played a pretty decent game," coach Sam Wiggins of Matthews noted. "Our defense gave way in the third quarter when they scored 13 field goals." Matthews played its final two games in the tournament without high scoring Audie Davis who was out of action with a throat ailment. The frustration of losing the title was shortlived for the Pirates and their fans after it was announced that the MHS group was winners of the sportsmanship honors. Puxico walked away with the consolation prize by blasting the host 72-53 behind the 20 point offensive leadership of Mike Hill. Les Brown topped Bernie scoring with 18 points.

Bluff Loses Opener

SPRINGFIELD — Coach Tom Hoover's debut as varsity coach of the Poplar Bluff Mules was an unpleasant one Friday night as his cagers dropped an 82-73 decision to Kickapoo high.

advantage of Mule fouls and notched the win from the charity line where they out-scored the visitors 20-7.

Kirk May, Brent Hufst and Mark Eddleman led the assault on the host with 24, 22 and 19 point totals. Curtis Hinton was the top Mule scorer with 20 points.

Bluff won the B-game, 56-46.

Reindeer Out Run Tribe

CLARKTON — A torrid first quarter led the Clarkton Reindeer to their fourth win of the campaign over the mistake-riddled Kenneth Indians, 51-44, on their home court Friday night. Johnny McGee led the win for Clarkton with 22 points. McKinney was tops for the Indians with 10.

Clarkton's first quarter play gave them the win in the game as they outscored Kennett 19-8 in that frame. Although Kennett held them even the rest of the way, the Reindeer had enough for the win. In the second quarter both teams scored thirteen points to make the count at half read 32-21.

Kennett came out of the dressing room an improved team and actually outscored the more experienced Clarkton quintet 12-8 in the third period to make the score 40-33 entering the last period. In that last period the Indians could make no headway as both teams scored eleven to make the final score 51-44 and give the Reindeer a split of the night's action. They had lost the "B" game beforehand, 42-21, to Kennett. Terry Williams led the win for Kennett with 11. Randy Wiseman scored almost half of the baby Reindeer points with 10.

McCulloch Paces NPHS

WARDELL — The North Pemiscot Mustangs won their fourth basketball game of the season here Friday night beating Luxora, Ark. 81-66.

NPHS took a commanding lead in the first period 18-8 and added 10 more points in the second period to lead 45-25 at the half and held on as the Luxora team came fighting back in the second half.

Terry McCulloch led the Mustang attack with 22 points. Eddie Blackman was the defensive standout pulling down 15 rebounds. Jack Gatsen hit 25 for the losers.

North Pemiscot took the B game 59-45 with Joe Jennings scoring 19 and Jerry Diges hit 15 for the Arkansas team.

MATTHEWS' Raymond Bledsoe (45) eyes the basket while Lilbourn's Tommy Wells eyes him during the championship game of the Bernie invitational tournament Friday night. Wells led Bernie to the 73-69 victory with 26 points while Bledsoe topped MHS scoring with 17 markers.

Tourney's Next Week

Two tournaments have opening round action in the SEMO area Monday night. At Essex, the Richland R-1 schools basketball tournament has three games Monday night and there will be two games at East Prairie in the "B" team tournament.

At Richland, the Number one-seeded Rebels play St. Vincents in the opening game at 6:00 p.m. Van Buren, seeded number four plays Ellsinore at 7:30 p.m., and number two seeded Hayti plays Twin Rivers at 9:00 p.m.

At East Prairie, the number one seeded Oran Eagles oppose ISC at 6:30 p.m. and number four seeded Kelly plays Portageville at 8 p.m.

Kelly Survives Oran Threat

ORAN — The Kelly Hawks moved into the finals of the Oran invitational basketball tournament here Friday night with a 78-74 victory over the host Eagles and East Prairie whipped Scott City 87-44 in the losers bracket.

The two main causes for the Eagle downfall were a cold second period in which the Hawks took advantage of several turnovers and outscored the Eagles by 10 points and three missed shots within the last 50 seconds of the game.

Coach Nick Lanpher's KHS squad remained unbeaten. Oran jumped out in front in the first period and led by five points 23-18 after the initial quarter.

In the second quarter the Hawks took advantage of the bad passes and surged ahead by 10 points to lead 41-36 at the half.

Kelly built the lead up to three more points in the third period as they pumped in 26 to the Eagles 23.

In the last period Oran came roaring back to get within one point with 50 seconds left but missed their shots when the teams exchanged opportunities to score in the last seconds.

Mike Morrow led the Hawk offense with 28 points Randy Deason scored 23. Oran was led by Otis Burley with 17 and Paul Taylor with 15.

The East Prairie Eagles scored 19 points in the first period to take a 19-9 point advantage in winning the championship in the losers bracket.

The Eagles kept pouring in the points in the second quarter as they built up a 42-43 halftime lead.

The last half was more of the same as the Rams were unable to stop the Eagle attack falling behind in the third period 26-13 and scoring only eight in the last quarter while the Eagles were pouring in 19.

The Amick brothers, Mark and Rand scored 15 and 11 respectively to lead the Scott Rams.

Joe Moss was high for the Eagles with 19 points. Kelly and Scott Central play for the Championship Saturday night following the Charleston and Oran game at 7:00 Scoring:

Hale Stars For SEMO

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Three Rivers junior college Transfers, Paul Hale of Morley and Fred Johnson of Oran, played key roles in Southeast Missouri State College's 79-78 victory over the University of Missouri St. Louis Friday night.

Hale flipped in a free throw with 23 seconds left in the game to give the Indians the lead and eventual victory after stealing the ball and driving in for a layup and Johnson led all scorers with 26 points as SEMO state won its second straight game of the season.

Johnson was aided by Jim Anderson, who scored 21, and the Indians' 6-5 postman, Andrew Reid, who pumped in 18 points and pulled down 14 rebounds. Other leading rebounders for Cape were Johnson and Anderson with 11 and eight, respectively. Ron Carkum, a 6-foot-5 forward led the Rivermen with 19 points. Carkum also had 21 rebounds for high-game honors. Mike Hayes with 16, 6-foot-7 center Greg Daust with 11, and Mark Bernsen with 12 were the other Rivermen to score in double figures.

Neither team shot well. Cape State hit just 33.9 per cent from the floor and the Rivermen were successful on 36.3 per cent of their field shots. The Riverman outrebounded Cape, 65-39.

Cape had a nine-point edge at half, 44-35. Just after half, the Rivermen caught Cape and the game was close the rest of the way. Finally, with 2:49 left to play, SEMO took a three point lead and held it the rest of the way.

Gape plays next Wednesday night at Normal, Illinois, against Illinois State College.

Classic Battle Set

STEELE
Senath-Hornersville trounced the host South Pemiscot Bulldogs 68-39 and Caruthersville whipped Rector, Ark., 76-61 to advance into the finals of the South Pemiscot invitational basketball tournament here Friday night.

The Lions were a little too much for the Bulldogs as they took a 20-15 first quarter lead. South Pemiscot was unable to hit the bucket in the second period when they had the opportunity and the Lions built up a 38-21 halftime lead scoring 18 to the Bulldogs 6 in the period.

The third quarter was more of the same for the bulldogs as they were unable to hit when the opportunity arose and the Lions increased their lead. Senath-Hornersville scored 16 in the last quarter as the Bulldogs were getting 12.

Barry Harris hit 23 for the lions. Bob Nichols had 16 for the Bulldogs. Caruthersville had a fairly easy time disposing of Rector, Ark. as they outpointed their visitors 23-15.

The Tigers added to their lead in the second period to lead 40-29 at the half. Rector was not match for the Tigers as they fell farther behind in the third period.

Caruthersville was outpointed in the last period 21-19 but the game had already been decided long before.

Johnny Holmes led the Tigers in scoring with 21 points Tom Sanders was high for Rector with 36. Caruthersville and Senath-Hornersville play for the Championship Saturday night.

Risco Tops GHS

GIDEON -- Risco used a tight man - to - man defense to hold coach Richard Pyland's Bulldog cagers to eight points in each of the first three quarters while chalking up 31 and then held on as the teams played on even terms in the final quarter to post a 46-40 New Madrid county league win Friday night.

Johnson and Stobaugh teamed for 30 of the Golden Tigers points, netting 16 and 14 markers respectively. Whitehead had 19 points for the Bulldogs top effort.

Gideon salvaged a split as the Bulldog junior varsity posted a 49-47 victory behind the 29 points of Curtis Coleman. Holmes and Davis scored 13 points each for Risco.

Quarterbacks

Only two quarterbacks have led the NFL in passing two seasons in a row. Cecil Isbell of Green Bay did it in 1941-42 and Milt Plum of Cleveland did it in 1960-61.

Liberty Loses

ELLINGTON -- An error plagued Liberty team lost its initial game of the basketball season to Ellington here Tuesday night in a close game, 75-73. Jerry Turner and Gary Pewitt combined for 46 points to lead the win for the Whippets. Marshall Chowning and Dave Campbell led the losers with 17 and 21 points respectively. The win was Ellington's fifth in six games.

The full court press hurt Liberty and Ellington took a first period lead 19-14. The Whippets widened that lead to 39-31 at half before Chowning and Campbell began to connect. The Liberty team actually erased the Whippet lead and took a slim one point lead, 54-43, into the final quarter. However, the Ellington team retained its composure and outscored the visitors 22-19 to cop the win.

Liberty won the JV contest to give them a split of the night's action, 73-61. Miller and Myers led the win with 20 points each. Terry Mann led the Ellington JV team with 19. Scoring:

Bismarck Tops

Arcadia Valley

ARCADIA -- Coach David Bone's Arcadia Valley basketball team went down to defeat 71-58 to Bismarck here Tuesday night.

Bismarck had a 19 point scoring performance by Joe Wright to lead the attack.

Aaron Boyd was high for Arcadia Valley with 29 points.

Arcadia Valley is 2-5 for the season and Bismarck is 1-4. Bismarck held a 25-18 points advantage after the first period and a 39-39 halftime lead.

Arcadia Valley made a mild comeback in the third period scoring 18 to Bismarck's 12. The last period belonged to Bismarck 20-10.

Bismarck won the B game 42-25 as Howell scored 13 for the winners. Gay was high for the losers with 8.

Wipfler Leads

Dragon Win

STE. GENEVIEVE -- Led by Dave Wipfler and Joe Rozier, the Valle of Ste. Genevieve Dragons won their first game of the season over College High of Cape, 74-43. Wipfler led all scorers with 26 and Rozier added 21 as the Dragons ran wild over a Prep team that couldn't seem to find the goal. College High scored just 12 times from the field. Niswonger led Prep scorers with 12 points.

Valle committed many first game mistakes in the first quarter, but thanks to the quiet Prep gunners, the Dragons led 13-5 after one frame. Production for both teams picked up in the second period and the score at half was 33-19, Valle.

The rout continued in the second half as Valle dominated the scoring 41-24. The loss ended College High's record at 1-1.

Valle also won the "B" game, 49-17, as Dave Wipfler led the scoring with 21 points. Engelman scored 8 for the losers.

Hoskins Paces Van Buren

VAN BUREN -- Van Buren built up a big first half lead Friday night and then held off a second half flurry by Winona to post a 78-69 win, their fourth of the season. John Hoskins led the Bulldogs with 26. Yearwood was high for the losers with 27.

Van Buren won the game in the first half as they led at intermission, 47-30, after have ninepoint lead after one period, 23-14.

in the second half the Winona team tried to make a comeback, but it fell short. Winona outscored the favored Van Buren team 21-13 in the third period to trail by nine once again entering the last frame, 60-51. In the last quarter Van Buren held even, 18-18, to gain the win.

Van Buren also won the "B" game, 46-31, behind 11 points by Parrence. Shoemaker led with 13 for the losers.

Couch In Final

MYRTLE -- Coach Stan Whitson's Couch Indians moved into the finals of their own invitational basketball tournament here Friday night by downing Thayer 58-51 and Mammoth Springs Ark edged Alton 54-52 for the opportunity to meet the Indians Saturday night to decide the championship.

Couch and Thayer played a controlled offense game in which neither team could pull away from the other.

Thayer took a 19-15 point lead after the initial period but Couch came back in the second quarter to pull within one point at the half 34-33.

Both teams scored nine points in the third period and Couch broke the game open in the last period hitting 16 points to only nine for Thayer.

Boyd Hollis was high for Couch with 16 and Tom Wyatt hit 19 for the losers.

Mammoth Springs had a harder time than Couch as they say their lead dwindle to only two before the buzzer sounded to end the game.

Mammoth Spring is the only team to defeat the Indians so they will have a chance to redeem themselves Saturday night.

South Iron Posts 8th Straight Win

ANNAPOLIS -- Twenty-five points by 6-foot-3 forward Gerald Stevens and the return to action of 6-foot-4 center Steve Matchell gave the South Iron Panthers the needed impetus to claim their eighth win in a row this season. The final score of 74-64 was also the fifth loss in eight games for the Lesterville Bearcats. Lesterville was led by Bill Lester who pumped in 22 points from his forward position.

South Iron showed who was in command in the first period when they outscored the visitors, 25-17. They increased that lead to 43-31 by halftime and then coasted to the win. In the second half, Lesterville did manage to cop the edge in the second half, 33-31, but it was not nearly enough and the Panthers remain undefeated.

South Iron also took the "B" game, 36-29 as Adams scored 16 to lead the way. Hinton had nine fore the losers.

Kirkman Stars

SUMMERVILLE -- Led by the scoring and rebounding of Mike Kirkman, the Summerville Wildcats raced to their third victory in five games this year with a 65-59 decision over the Norwood Pirates. Kirman scored 19 points and pulled down 17 rebounds to spark the win. Gary Fodge led the losers in scoring and on the boards with 18 markers and 14 rebounds.

The game was close for a half. Summerville led at half, 33-29, after having the edge 14-12 after the first quarter. In the third period the Pirates outscored their hosts, 16-11, to assume a one point lead, 45-44, entering the final period. However, in that last frame, the Wildcats outscored their visitors, 21-14, to take the double win.

It was a double win since the hosts had also laid claim to the "B" contest, their seventh JV win in eight tries, this time by the score of 70-18. Henry led with 19 for the winners and Royal scored exactly half of the losers total.

Summerville plays next against Bunker Saturday night at home with the starting time 6:30.

Ellington Records 6th

ELLINGTON -- Ellington took a surprisingly easy victory from Bunker here Friday night 80-57. It was Ellington sixth win in seven games. Bunker is 4-2.

Bunker led by one after the first period, 13-12. Ellington however, started to pull away in the second period and never trailed in the second half. At half, it was 31-24.

Ellington came out hot in the second half, outscoring the favored Bunker team 25-14 to take a 56-38 lead into the final period. Reserves, who figured they would have a night off, played the final frame as Ellington outscored Bunker 24-19 to take the win, 80-57.

Ellington also won the JV encounter, 52-36. Roberts was tops for the winners with 18 and Boewen led Bunker with 13.

Liberty Evens Season Mark

MOUNTAIN VIEW -- The Liberty Eagles evened their season's record up at the expense of Eminence here Friday night, 101-49. The Eagles completely overpowered their visitors, running Eminence's record to 1-5. Campbell and Smith led for Liberty with 25 and 22 points respectively. Titer led Eminence with 21.

The game was never close. The much more powerful Liberty team ran out to a 24-5 first period lead and were never headed. Their lead at half was 49-14 and they unloaded the bench in the second half with eleven boys scoring for the Eagles in all. A 28-14 third period edge gave Liberty an unstopable lead of 77-28 going into the last frame. Even with the reserves playing, the Eagles claimed the last period edge, 24-21, to make the final score 101-49 and give liberty a sweep of the night's action, since they had romped to a 107-27 JV win prior. Cecil Miller outscored the entire Eminence team, as he pumped in 31 to lead the winners. Wood led Eminence with eight.

There's No Business Like Farm Business

By Editorial Research Reports
WASHINGTON — The risks of investing in Broadway shows are minimal compared to those routinely faced by the nation's farmers. Last year's major hazard was southern corn leaf blight, which ruined around 10 per cent of the crop. It was feared that a recurrence of the disease could wipe out as much as 50 per cent of the 1971 corn harvest. Instead, corn production this year is expected to reach 5.4 million bushels — 31 per cent more than in 1970, and a record.

The bumper crop of corn and of other feed grains is good news for consumers, because it assures ample supplies of fodder for cattle, hogs, sheep, dairy cows, and poultry. For farmers, the news is not so good. Corn now is selling at eight cents or more a bushel under the federal support level of $1.08.

In an effort to avoid a repetition of this year's feed-grain glut, Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin recently increased by 25 per cent the amount of acreage farmers must keep out of production in 1972 to qualify for government loans and payments. The federal payment for idled land — based on the number of bushels that otherwise would have been produced on it — likewise was raised by 25 per cent. The 1972 program could cost almost half as much as this year's $1.2 billion.

Next year may also bring a revival of interest in the question of rural development. In proposing a $1.1 billion revenue — sharing program for rural development last March, President Nixon noted: "This nation's farms are among our most efficient producers, and they are of central importance to a strong future for rural America." However, an administration bill embodying the President's program has not advanced beyond the hearings stage.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D Minn.) recently pointed up the need for rural development by noting that "three million farms have disappeared in the technological revolution that is still, sweeping American agriculture. More than 30 million people have abandoned the small farms and towns for the cities, so that 75 per cent of our people are crowded onto less than 2 per cent of our land ... We must head toward a rural-urban balance — a healthy balance between the people and the land."

In a sense, rural areas already are being developed privately. Numerous large manufacturing companies have entered agriculture, hoping to reap profits through economies of scale. In a recent series of articles on this "agribusiness," The Washington Post directed attention to Tenneco, "with its $4.3 billion in assets and its ability to employ its own land, tractors, pesticides, oil, processing plants, and marketing system."

Tenneco is prospering so far, but some other businesses that went into farming have found themselves out of their depth. Farm Journal, observing that "at least five publicly financed superfarm ventures have fizzled out in the past few months," asserted that the "financially oriented brass didn't really understand farming."

News of these failures seems to have buoyed the spirits of family farmers.

On The Fence Row

By Tom Brown

Area Agronomy Specialist
BLOOMFIELD — Several questions from farmers have been coming to the University Extension Center recently to the danger of grazing grain sorghum stubble.

There is danger of prussic acid poisoning of cattle that are grazing stubble of grain sorghum, sudangrass, sorghum-sudan crosses, and other sorghum crops. Livestock producers and dairymen should be aware of this danger and take steps to avoid it. In spite of the danger involved, such stalk fields will provide lots of grazing in many cases.

Fall is the season when conditions are usually most favorable for prussic acid poisoning. Prussic acid is most apt to form when plants have been stunted by frost, growth, and freezing or near freezing temperatures. Forage crops are likely to be most dangerous when plants are less than 18 inches high. Farmers should be especially cautious of plants that are wilted following frost. Fields containing such plants may be grazed again after normal growth resumes. Such fields are absolutely safe for grazing after the plants are dead and thoroughly cured. Neither sudan grass or sorghum-sudan crosses are dangerous when preserved as hay or silage after the ensiling process is complete.

Visible signs of prussic acid poisoning are labored breathing, spasms, or staggering; however, animals sometimes die without showing such symptoms. If cattle become poisoned from prussic acid, they should be removed from the field, and a veterinarian should be called immediately. Treatment must often be administered quickly to avoid death.

A field of cotton is checked at harvest time by Richard McIntosh, Extension farm management specialist, and K. M. and Delane Streeter, Painton. The Streeters operate a grain and cotton farm.

Streeter's Win Award

The addition of on the-farm grain storage has allowed a more orderly marketing of crops on the 1,020-acre farm run by K. M. Streeter and his son Delane in Scott County.

Three bins with a capacity for 41,000 bushels were added to the farm in 1969. This brought the storage capacity to 57,000 bushels on the farm.

Grain produced on the farm — and that includes corn, soybeans, grain sorghum, and wheat — can be put into storage and marketed throughout the following year. This allows the Streeters to avoid the traditionally low market prices at harvest time.

In recognition of their management ability, the two Streeter families have been named to receive a State Farm Management Award by the Extension Division of the University of Missouri-Columbia.

In telling about their grain marketing, K.M. Streeter said, "Usually we market the grain by the following spring. We try to move it in January, February, and March before we get into planting time. However, we have held corn until July and August waiting for the best price," he added.

In Wheat Planting Fertilizer Choice Factor

The kind, amount and when to apply fertilizer is one of the first decisions a farmer must make when planting wheat this fall, John Garrett, area agronomy specialist, says. If your soil hasn't been tested during the past three or four years, a soil sample should be taken to determine lime and fertilizer needs. Wheat does best in a pH range from 5.5 to 6.5. If lime is needed, it should be applied according to recommendations.

Wheat fertilization can be broken down into three different categories: (1) starter at planting; (2) time of nitrogen application; and (3) rate of nitrogen application. A starter is usually considered to be a complete fertilizer, containing a small amount of nitrogen, phosphate and potash. A starter should always be applied at planting, on sandy and silt loam soils that test medium to low in phosphate and potash. Little or no direct response can be expected on heavy textured soils testing high to very high in these elements.

Results of six years research show that a starter of 10 to 12 pounds nitrogen and 30 to 50 pounds of phosphate and potash at planting increased yields on all soils except those testing high to very high. The increase was 6.4 bushels on sandy soils, 2.7 on clays and 35.3 on very low testing silt loam soils.

Starters have not directly increased yields enough on high testing soils to offset fertilizer cost. However, 90% or more of our wheat is followed by soybeans. It is well known that soybean yields are usually increased if they follow a well fertilized crop. Due to this increase in yield a starter is always recommended unless the soil tests very, very high.

In wheat experiments conducted at the Delta Center, nitrogen was applied at four different times, planting — January — March — and April. The same rate of nitrogen was used at each time.

Highest yields were produced on each soil type when the N was applied from February 15 to March 15. The March topdressing increased yields an average of 4.9 bushels on sandy soils. The increase for four of these six years was 7.3 bushels per acre. The six year average increase was 3.1 on sandy loam and 4.6 on clay soils.

The soybeans are sold at river terminal markets for the export trade.

The corn is usually sold on contract to local elevators. The Streeters hold the corn in their bins until it is needed by the elevators for mixing feed.

This past cropping season the Streeters raised 575 acres of soybeans, 200 acres of milo, 75 acres of wheat, and almost 100 acres of cotton.

They didn't plant any corn this year because of the threat of blight and the lack of blight resistant seed corn. Blight the previous year had cut their corn yields to 40 bushels per acre.

The milo turned out to be a good crop, K.M. said. It produced 6,000 pounds per acre. "It may pay out as much as corn," K.M. added.

We didn't have to have special equipment to harvest the milo and we didn't have to dry any of it this year, he added.

However, K.M. said, if we can get a crop in by April 15, we'll go back to corn again next year.

The Streeters have put some 300 acres of crop ground to grade. Since starting the grading in 1965, they've leveled from 40 to 70 acres a year.

Since most of the acreage is Sharkey clay or Waverly silt loam, most of the benefit from land grading has come from improved drainage and not from irrigation, the Streeters have found.

"We had too much water this past summer," K.M. said. "If it hadn't been for the graded fields we would have lost some of the crops. Even on the graded ground the wet weather hurt."

but it didn't drown out any of the fields," he added.

For the dry years, they do have irrigation pumps and a half mile of main line pipe.

K.M. Streeter and his wife Elsie have progressed from tenants in 1958 to owners of the farming operation in 1971.

Of the 1,020 acres, 920 are owned by Mr. and Mrs. K. M. Streeter and the remaining 100 acres are owned by the father-son partnership. The 100 acres were purchased after Delane and his wife Gwenell became active partners in the farming operation in 1968.

Future plans include the addition of more acreage and some cattle.

Current plans are to first add a cow herd and then work into a confinement feeding lot for steers.

"Livestock will even out the use of our labor during the year," K.M. said. "With row crops there's part of the year when you're not working."

Livestock won't be new to the farming operation. K.M. used to pasture and feed out up to 150 steers a year. In addition he had a 25-cow beef herd which was sold in 1965. Streeter also used to feed out some 200 hogs a year.

Among improvements on the farm is the remodeled home for Delane and Gwenell. They have two children, Madrigail, 5, and Marcus, 1. Gwenell operates a craft and antique shop located at the farm.

All of the Streeters are active in community affairs. K.M. Streeter is a member of the National Cotton Research and Promotion Board and chairman of the Scott County Soil and Water Conservation District.

Trees And Shrubs Fight Noise Pollution

by JANE LEWIS
(The writer is a masters degree candidate in the University of Missouri School of Journalism's Washington reporting program.)

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Farmers, who are daily besieged by the din of traffic on super highways, can fight this "noise pollution" by using trees and shrubs as sound barriers, according to a report published recently by the University of Nebraska in cooperation with the U.S. Forest Service.

The report is based on research in southeast Nebraska which found that belts of trees and shrubs can be effective in reducing the level of traffic noise by as much as 50 per cent.

For best results, belts should be tall, dense, and located close to the noise source instead of the area to be protected, the report says.

The research was conducted by David I. Cook, professor of engineering mechanics at the University of Nebraska, and Dr. David F. Van Haverbeke, associate professor of horticulture and forestry.

They found that high-speed car and truck traffic noise in rural areas can best be screened by tree-shrub belts which are 65 to 100 feet wide. The belts should contain several rows of densely planted, tall trees with a center row of trees at least 45 feet tall. The edge of the belt should be within 50-80 feet of the nearest traffic lane.

Different species of trees do not vary greatly in their ability to screen noise, the report says, but evergreen trees and shrubs are best for year-round noise protection.

Height, belt width and overall density were found to be more important in affecting sound transmission than differences in leaf size or shape and branching characteristics.

The researchers point to the continual increase in the community noise level during the past two decades as indication of a future noise problem "comparable to the current air pollution problem of our large industrial centers."

In urban areas property can be effectively screened from passenger car noise by a 20 foot belt consisting of a single row of dense shrubs backed by a row of taller trees, the report says.

The report also points out that trees combined with soft surfaces such as grass are more effective in reducing noise levels than when trees are combined with hard surfaces such as pavement or gravel.

The research was conducted by projecting pre-recorded traffic noises through rural shelterbelts and urban screen plantings. The reduced sound was measured at various distances within the belt.

TUES. DEC. 7th & TUES. DEC. 21st 1971

ATTENTION IMPLEMENT DEALERS AND FARMERS: THE FALL AND WINTER RUSH IS ON:

DEAR FRIENDS:

This has been a great year for the farmers in our area of Southeast Missouri. We have had one of the highest productive crop years here in SEMO that we have had in a long time. The wheat, corn, cotton and bean yields have been terrific. This has stimulated a great demand for good, clean tractors, implements and harvesting tools. The demand in December will be great as there are many farmers wanting to buy before the first of the year. Our advice to you would be to consign your tractors and implements to our December sales for we are expecting the market to be better than it has been in the past.

If we can be of any service to you as a seller or buyer please feel free to call.

Arrange your business in order that you might attend all of our sales the first and third Tuesdays of each month as a buyer or seller. We now have one of the largest sales of its kind in the world and no doubt it will be much larger than ever before in the near future.

LITTER GULPER demonstrates clean-up power on the Capitol lawn in Washington. Looking a little like a crane which met with an accident, the droopy aluminum boom mounted on a conventional truck scoops up debris and feeds it into bags. Designed to handle bottles, cans, cigarette packages and the other small items which loom large in the total litter picture, the unit is said to be capable of reducing pickup costs for maintenance departments by 40 per cent.

French ladies of St. Louis surely copied Mrs. Clark's fashionable gowns and, as Missouri matured as a state, the dress of its women would become more a composite of styles. The commingling also would be found in the food served in the French and American households. Undoubtedly Julia Clark and, without question, her successor, Marguerite de Reilhe McNair, served frequent French dishes. The recipes of the old French cuisine of early Missouri were not recorded by the Creole wives since they could not write. Ingredients of their favored gumbos become obvious from the vegetables raised in their gardens and by a study of similar stews which are popular still. By deduction, therefore, the Missouri gumbo of 1820 and 1821 consisted of various combinations of chicken and crawfish, okra, lima beans and corn cut off the cob. Crabs and oysters, and later tomatoes, were added when they became available.

Seeds imported from Paris and advertised by a St. Louis merchant in 1818 included "Cabbage seeds of all kinds, Collyflower, Broccoli of divers kinds, with a choice selection of herb seeds." In addition to dishes made with the vegetables, French wives favored fricassees of available meats such as bear, turkey and wild cattle. Cordials and wines were distilled from natural fruits. For dessert, they prepared croquecigoles, a cookie made from eggs, brown sugar, milk and nutmeg.

A shortage of bread supplies caused a minor stir early in the history of St. Louis. One writer noted that three-fourths of the early population of St. Louis were hunters and boatmen to the exclusion of other occupations. While the population of Ste. Genevieve was agricultural, that of St. Louis did not till the common fields assiduously enough to raise grain for its own bread. Neighbors in the name of rivalry, dubbed St. Louis Pain Court, meaning short loaf or short of provisions. The situation was remedied to a certain extent and, in later years, when a bakery opened, the picturesque two-wheeled cart for delivering long loaves of bread must have been put to use to preserve the traditional image of a French village.

No criticism could be found of the attention or lack of attention paid by the French to the distillation of favored beverages such as wine made of currants and liqueur or cordials made from other native berries. One recipe for "cider and champagne" printed in an 1820 newspaper called for the fermenting of a liquid combining brown sugar, water and yeast with tartaric acid. Coffee served at the French table most frequently as a substitute made of rye since the enueine article cost 62 to 75 cents a pound - down to 50 cents when a steamboat arrived. Coffee was so special it was reserved for the master of the house and only for his breakfast.

Spices, available in Missouri only by import, were found in the recipes of her early years spent in more developed areas of Virginia. Representative is her recipe for catchup, preserved in the same leather-bound memorandum book which contained inventories of her personal clothes:

Pound your walnuts, in a mortar when large enough to pickel, strain of the liquor clear, or let it stand to settle and clear, to every quart thus cleared, add one ounce of cloves, one of black pepper, one of ginger, finely bruised, one ounce of salt, a good handful of horse radish, eight shalots and a clove or two of garlic, boil it about half an hour or until clear, take off all scum before taking it off the fire add a pint of best vinegar let it come to a boil take it off strain it through flannel, when cool bottle it right for use.

Most significant of the recipes recorded by St. Louis women was one for fried venison found among the notes of Harriett Stokes (Fallon), a girl reared in England, married to John O'Fallon, Missouri's first adjutant general appointed by Governor McNair. Her dish included cooking methods nostalgic of her native land, a touch of wine representing the flavor of her Missouri home, all added to the basic deer meat so widely available even on the most remote American frontier.

In her method of preparing the fried venison, Mrs. O'Fallon mentioned keeping the pan "hot before the fire," which is indicative of the cooking equipment and methods universal to all Missouri women in the early 1820s. The "stove" of both the American and French cooks was an enormous fireplace. A horizontal bar or crane at the top served to suspend kettles to boil or roast. Long rods with hooks removed pots from the fire and cooking spoons of necessity had extremely long handles. Kitchens often were located in a separate building if the household had a slave or servant to do the cooking. If a log cabin was the double variety - two rooms separated by an open passageway and all under one roof - the kitchen would be in one of the rooms. French cooks used a four de terr or ground oven, located in the back or side yard, where the hottest baking was done.

Wood was the universal fuel of Missouri wives in 1820 and 1821. Obviously, the availability of wood was no problem, but there were drastic disadvantages in the household which let its fire go out at night. Many a pioneer child would recall a bitterly cold trip to the nearest neighbor to borrow fire. Other methods of starting a fire involved flint and steel, if they were available, or a flintlock rifle. A little powder would be put in the lock and, as the hammer struck the flint, a spark would be produced and ignite the powder; the small flame, hopefully, could be transferred to the fireplace.

Menus of mid-Missourians in the early 1820s were not as varied as the foods served by French and American cooks in St. Louis. Foodstuff available to the log-cabin cook was much more limited, except in those areas of southeast Missouri bordering the Mississippi River where steamboats would stop. Steamboat traffic on the Missouri River was just starting when the state was admitted to the Union. Without such river transportation, foods were confined to what was shot, trapped, caught or raised in the fields. Meats were wild game, such as deer, turkey, quail, dove and pheasant and, in some areas, elk. Cured bear meat known as "bear bacon" was a frequent part of the settlers' diet. From the many streams and rivers of Missouri, the settlers took crappie, bass, catfish, buffalo and pike. From gardens came potatoes, pumpkins, beans and squashes. From adjacent wooded areas dock and poke, "wild greens," and could be gathered.

Two food sources vital to twentieth-century farmers were scarce among the Missouri settlers of the 1820s. One of these items was poultry. It was not that chickens were not available; the shortage seemed to result from the depredations of wolves and hawks. Guarding the poultry apparently required time and effort that the family could not extend. In more populated areas, such as St. Louis, chickens could be more easily protected in backyard coops. A crop in short supply on the pioneer farm was wheat. There were frequent references to wheat as being difficult to grow. A letter written from Howard County noted that wheat "costs more to raise than buy ..."

Corn was the undisputed ruler of the table in Missouri's log cabins. Duden referred to corn as the:

Nurse of the growing population. It serves all domestic animals as food. The meal made of it, when cooked with milk, furnishes a very nourishing, wholesome and palatable food. If it is kneaded with the boiled pulp of the pumpkin ..., a kind of bread can be made of it, which I prefer to wheat bread, especially if the dough has been made to ferment, by the influence of warmth, for twelve hours. Meal simply mixed with water or milk and baked without further ingredients makes a kind of bread which is too dry, however, if it is consumed with fatty foods it is eatable. The baking is one in covered, iron pots, which are placed beside the hearth and are covered entirely with burning coals.

What's The Law Leaving Scene Justified Act

By Jack Strauss, L.L.B.

Irwin got into an auto accident with Muscles McGirk. And, with his muscles rippling like a hoochy-koochy dancer, McGirk bounced out of his car and ran towards Irwin's automobile fist first. Afraid of being carried away feet first, Irwin jammed down on the gas pedal and drove off.

Left standing in Irwin's exhaust fumes, McGirk reported Irwin's departure to the police and, a short time later, he was picked up by a patrol car and charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

"Well, I certainly wasn't going to stay there," was Irwin's answer in court. "If I had, McGirk, who doesn't like me under normal circumstances, would have beaten the tar out of me. He's as strong as limburger cheese and twice as obnoxious."

"Being a coward," responded the prosecuting attorney, "is no defense in breaking the law. And, the law requires a person to stop when he's involved in an accident, with no exception. Consequently, Irwin is guilty by his own admission."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict cowardly Irwin of leaving the scene of an accident?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that even though the law may not allow for exceptions, law enforcement requires the use of common sense. If a person has reasonable grounds to believe he will suffer bodily injury if he stops at the scene of an accident, he need not stop. Particularly, when it's known by the other driver that he was the one involved in the accident.

(Based upon a 1971 South Dakota Supreme Court Decision)

Methods of grinding corn varied from the most simple mortar to the community mill - a sophisticated industry for that early period. Families accomplished the grinding for their own use with a mortar made by burning a hole in the top of a tree stump and the pestle fashioned of a metal wedge tied to the end of a stick. Crude home mills were made from rocks which were easier on the workmen but had one distinct disadvantage. If the stone used was "too soft" in it ... When mills were established, settlers would bring their corn to be ground, only to face a delay of two or three days, waiting their turn and then "pay toll by grinding as much for the still as they had for their own."

More finely ground corn was used for bread and the coarse for hominy which was a type of mush made by cooking the coarse meal and then combining it with milk. This hominy or mush was the main and sometimes only food in more primitive squatters' homes. A missionary shared such a meal, served by a middle-aged woman who prepared the mush, in a broken pot, the only article of furniture to be seen. After being set by to cool, the milk of a cow, who lived on the "range," was poured in, and the whole household gathered around the pot, and some with pieces of pewter, others with horn spoons, while the youngest availed himself of the workmanship of nature in securing his share of the repast.

With reference to proposed rapid transit plan, isn't the actual reason for traffic problem is that so many people drive alone in their auto, few even use a carpool, and that jams the streets. If these people could be compressed into more compact units, don't we have enough streets and highways to present to get people promptly where they want to go? I have timed myself driving over present streets some 8 miles to downtown and make it in 20 minutes, if few cars on the street. With what might be called normal traffic, time is 35 minutes.

Many people say they would still use their personal cars, but would they do so, if they could ride public transportation for "free"?

I took a poll, names at random from various telephone exchanges and you will find results and poll questions asked enclosed. Bi State takes in from fares a little over 20 million a year and other money from advertising etc. so an allowance of around 30 million would allow an experimental "for free" trial. This is only a third of what a year's interest would be on 2 billion dollars which is about what proposed plan will actually cost. Proposed bond issue is just a down payment. Then if most people will not ride the system for free or it needs some changes a lot of money will not be spent uselessly. The proposed bond issue should be defeated. It would also help if some double decker busses were built as they will carry twice as many people in same space as a single deck bus. Might even use some flange wheel cars for use on railroad tracks, if the full train crew rules were changed.

This would save the average rider at least $250 a year and those who drive a personal car perhaps $700 a year. As taxes this can be charged off on 1040 but not as cash paid for a ride to work. People I have talked to say a small fare, even a nickel, should be charged to keep those who might ride the bus as a pastime. This will take time of driver which costs money, time for accounting etc. and which today might be over the nickel taken in. Also it is against human nature as most of us are looking for something for nothing.

While a subway system has considerable appeal as a means of fast transportation, would people ride it especially after dark with crime as it is? Also would the stations be a spot of high crime? You will note from poll, many people afraid of subway especially after dark. Some years ago University City built a tunnel under Delmar at Kingsland. It has been filled in and perhaps today people are in less danger from an automobile in crossing Delmar than going under ground.

This is not offered as a tome on the subject but I believe it would prove the cheapest way to solve the problem and worth at least a trial. Glad to not only have your comments and suggestions but perhaps you can give it a little publicity and see what folks in general think of the idea. Between ideas on mass transit and new airport, the cost of these two projects alone will be more than the assessed valuation of all property in both the city and county.

With kindest regards,
John Frier

Irwin Disputes

Claim Too Much

Spent On Space

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP) — Apollo 15 astronaut Lt. Col. James B. Irwin took issue with those who say the United States spends too much on its space program in an interview preceding a speech Tuesday at William Jewell College.

Colonel Irwin said only 1.4 per cent of the national budget is spent on space and that includes such useful projects as communications and weather satellites.

He said the space program "helps create a better earth and also provides many jobs in the aerospace industries."

He says the instruments left there have made it a more useful satellite.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

Blessed is the man who endures trial, for when he has stood the test he will receive the crown of life which God has promised to those who love him. (James 1:12, RSV)
PRAYER: Heavenly Father, grant us the courage and power necessary to live according to Thy will. Amen.

THE MAN CHASERS
by Ann Pinchot
(Avon W281/$1.25
384 pp.)

"Ann Pinchot knows what it's all about and what's more can write about it," said Cosmopolitan about THE MAN CHASERS to its readers. "THE MAN CHASERS is about young girls 'making it' in a big city," said Ann Pinchot about her new book to columnist Maggie Daly. "I wrote the biography for Lillian Gish (THE MOVIES, MR. GRIFFITH AND ME) and after all that Victorian and Avon is launching it with a virginity, I had to rebel and go to the extreme." THE MAN CHASERS are six young women in New York City - beautiful, single and unconventional. They live in a singles hotel, liberated from family ties; but still hooked on their urgent desire for fame, fortune and men. The secret lives of the six would flabbergast the folks back home if they could see them pursue the seductive promises of excitement in the big city, only to find that life often reneges on what it seems to offer so willingly.

THE MAN CHASERS is the stuff bestsellers are made of and Avon is launching it with a 500,000 copy first printing.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Dec. 4, the 338th day of 1971. There are 27 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1861, a workers' rebellion broke out in Paris and was suppressed by Louis Napoleon. The event is known in French history as the "December Four Massacre."

On this date:

In 1783, George Washington had a farewell meeting with his officers at Fraunce's Tavern in New York.

In 1816, James Monroe was elected the fifth U.S. president.

In 1876, the New York Tammany leader, Boss Tweed, escaped from prison. He later was recaptured in Spain.

In 1942, American bombers struck the Italian mainland for the first time in World War II.

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Ismet Inonu held a wartime meeting in Cairo.

In 1944, British troops and armed units of the Greek leftist O.L.A.S. party were fighting in the streets of Athens.

Ten years ago: U.S. military policemen halted a Soviet army sedan for an hour in the U.S. sector of Berlin, reportedly to retaliate for Communist harassment of U.S. Army cars in East Berlin.

Five years ago: Britain and Rhodesia were trying to work out terms to end the Rhodesian white government's rebellion.

GENE BRADLEY

PARMA — Gene Autry Bradley, 23, of Chicago, and formerly of Parma, died November 25 near Springfield, Ill., as result of an automobile accident.

He was born at Gould, Ark. July 4, 1948, son of Zakalrah Jones and Laverne Jones.

He graduated from Parma high school in 1968, and served two years in Vietnam. He attended Mt. Calvary Baptist church.

Surviving are his mother; five brothers, David Bradley, of Great Lakes, Ill., Alvin Bradley Jr., of Benton Harbor, Mich., Donald, Robert and Leander Bradley, all of Parma; three sisters, Linda Mae Sewell of Chicago, Deborah and Marsha Sewell, both of Parma; his grandparents, James and Mattie Bradley, Malden.

The body is at Boyd funeral home, Malden.

Services will be Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in Mt. Calvary church, with the Rev. A. C. Sanford Ellis and the Rev. A. C. Sprow, officiating.

Burial will be in the Macedonia cemetery at Malden.

MARY BELL

CHARLESTON — Mrs. Mary L. Bell of Charleston died at 9 a.m. in a Chaffee hospital, where she had been a patient a day. She had been in failing health a year.

Mrs. Bell had lived in Charleston the past 26 years, but was born in Pontotoc, Miss. She was a member of Mercy Street Baptist church at Charleston.

Surviving are two sons, Richard Bell, Detroit, Mich., and Leroy Bell, at home; four daughters, Mrs. Eula Long, Benton Harbor, Mich., Mrs. Leona Massey, Charleston, Mrs. Ruby McKinney, Detroit and Miss Erna Jean Bell, at home; 19 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

CYNTHIA MULLEN

BERNIE — Cynthia Ella Mullen, 79, died at 6:45 p.m. Thursday in the Lucy Lee hospital after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Mullen was born April 28, 1892 in Todd County, Ky., but had lived in Bernie since the age of 23. She attended the Missionary Alliance Church. On Jan. 9, 1906 she married Earnest "Tink" Mullen, who died on Nov. 7, 1958.

Surviving are a son, Hal Mullen, of Bernie; daughters, Mrs. Alma Brown, of Poplar Bluff, and Mrs. Thelma Pruitt, of Bernie; sisters, Mrs. Norene Miley, Mrs. Tina Mansfield and Mrs. Mamie Forester, all of Flint, Mich.; five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

The funeral was at 1 p.m. today in the Duffie-Rainey funeral chapel, and burial was in the Sadler's Chapel cemetery. The Rev. Joe Masters officiated.

Articles, Cash Found Missing

DEXTER — Dexter school officials are investigating what they believe to be the theft of a number of articles and a quantity of cash from the local high school over a period of several months, it was announced this week by school officials.

School officials estimated that the amount of equipment which is missing is valued at an estimated $2,000. In addition, approximately $500 in cash is reported to be missing. The money represented money from various "petty cash" funds in the school, it was said.

Officials said that the items have been noticed as missing over a period of about 18 months.

School officials said that they had reason to believe that duplicate keys were used to enter the building during the nighttime hours.

No vandalism was reported, and school officials said that no doors were forced open at anytime during the period in question.

School officials said that an investigation of the matter had been underway for several months and that an inventory of the missing equipment and money had been kept.

School officials stated Thursday that as a result of the investigation the officials have suspended three students in the school for "violation of school policy." The three named by school officials as having been suspended for violation of policy are Don Allen, Barry Buchanan and Stuart McGhee. The suspensions were made, pending further review and action by the Board of Education, Supt. T. S. Hill said in a statement issued Thursday.

School officials said that parents of the students were informed of the action.

It could not be learned whether or not further action will be taken, but school officials said that their investigation was continuing.

"It is possible," Supt. Hill said in his statement, "that other students may later be involved."

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — If your club operated like the United Nations, it would allow members almost three years to pay their dues, not punish those who ignored special assessments, and rely on donations for many of its biggest projects.

And if club members were as lax about meeting their financial obligations as many U.N. members are, your club would be at or near bankruptcy. The latest accounting shows that 96 of the 131 members are behind to some degree on their bills.

The United Nations is $189 million in debt. It is kept afloat only by money still available from bonds held by some member nations and by the patience of its creditors—mostly member nations who are owed for special services they have provided to the entire membership.

This was emphasized as the United States lost its bid to keep Nationalist China in the organization and the General Assembly voted to give the Peking government the U.N. membership allotted to China.

Why does the United Nations find itself in chronic financial hot water?

An inspection of accounts due gives some clues—the Soviet Union is listed as owing the organization $99 million.

But a more revealing indicator is the list of voluntary contributors.

The United States traditionally leads the list. Last year it made $139.2 million in voluntary contributions.

Gunmen Rob, Kill, Kidnap And Wound, Still At Large

SIMMESPORT, La. (AP) — Two heavily armed gunmen killed one man, kidnaped two policemen and wounded two others during a crime spree involving a robbery, high speed chases and shootouts in Louisiana authorities reported.

Bloodhounds and a state police helicopter were called into service as authorities continued the search for the gunmen today.

"They're desperate and they'll kill anybody," said Sheriff F. D. Didier of Avoyelles Parish.

Authorities said the gunmen were armed with .45-caliber pistols, shotguns, submachine guns and a rifle.

The crime spree began Thursday night when the gunmen broke into the home of C. R. Laborde, a retired farmer who lives near Bordeloville. They tied up Laborde, his wife and two children and fled with $740, the family car, a shotgun and a rifle.

At Mansura, policemen halted the fleeing bandits, but the gunmen captured officers Addis Fruge and Douce Jacobs and took them hostage in their patrol car.

The first shootout took place when a police unit from Bunkie caught up with the gunmen. Fruge and Jacobs escaped during the gunfire but the gunmen escaped and made it to Evergreen.

At Evergreen, authorities said they killed a man tentatively identified as Thomas Matthews, wounded his wife and fled in the family car.

Johnny Wilmore, a Cheneyville policeman, picked up the pursuit, was hit in the chest by a shotgun blast. He was not seriously hurt and stayed in the chase.

About 25 police cars continued the chase out of Evergreen. Five cruisers lost the gunmen, who shot out the windows of two other police cars. Another cruiser stopped because of a burned-out engine and two others went careening into ditches when the fleeing men threw out smoke bombs that hampered visibility, authorities said.

The gunmen made it to about two miles north of here but headed out on foot after Bunkie Police Chief Leon Franklin shot out the rear window of their car.

Sergeant Thurman S. Burns Jr. 635 Brannum Street Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Sergeant Burns:

Please be advised that you are hereby appointed as training officer for the Sikeston Police Department, effective December 5, 1971.

Your duties in general will be implementing a training program within the department. This program to be a continuing program so that all officers will receive adequate training and periodical refresher courses in all phases of police work.

Your initial operation facilities will consist of an office to be used as a class room that is located in the upstairs portion of the new City Administration building and all other training equipment now in use by the Sikeston Police Department.

Arrangements are now being made for a departmental firing range which will also be your responsibility.

I am confident that you will perform your additional duties in a professional manner.

Sincerely yours, Arthur O. Bruce Chief of Police

Program Designed To Get Trees In Bootheel

Westvaco Corporation and the Department of Conservation are again cooperating in a program designed to get more trees planted in the Bootheel Counties in 1972. Any county landowner who buys seedlings from the Missouri Department of Conservation can get as many free seedlings as he buys according to Harold Holland District Forester. The offer is made in 14 southeast Missouri counties. The company also will match, on a one-for-one basis, pine seed for direct seeding which is purchased from the Department of Conservation.

In addition, Westvaco will give up to 500 free pine seedlings to each member of an organized youth group, and will give up to 5,000 free seedlings to any school wishing to start or expand a school forest. Neither the youths or schools need to buy seedlings to be eligible for the free seedlings.

In the past two years in which Westvaco has offered this program, they have given over 200,000 free seedlings and over 75 pounds of pine seed (enough to plant 300 acres) to landowners in fourteen southeast Missouri counties.

The U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will share the cost of seedlings and planting with the landowners through the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP), details of which can be obtained from the County ASCS Director.

Dan Frissell of the Soil Conservation Service, Sam Atwell, Extension Area Agronomy Specialist and Harold Holland, District Forester are cooperating with Westvaco and the Department of Conservation in advising landowners and youth groups of the details of the Seedling Program.

The scale adopted for 1971-73 calls for the United States to pay the highest percentage—31.52. The Soviet Union is second at 14.18 per cent.

Twenty-one U.N. members whose assessments total $1 million or more are expected to pay 85 per cent of the regular financial support for the 131 member body.

Police are searching for two men who, posing as representatives of the Veterans Administration Hospital at Poplar Bluff, have been conducting a confidence game in Cape Girardeau this week.

The fraudulent scheme — one of the oldest in existence — they have won $500, but they must first donate $100 to the VA Hospital.

Officers said the two men are preying mostly on elderly persons, and thus far have succeeded in victimizing two people, one for $72 and the other for $135.

EBB LICENSED HAIR CONSULTANT IN SIKESTON MONDAY

WILL EXPLAIN HAIR PROBLEMS FREE

Louisville, Ky. Dec. 4 — Mr. M. J. Hornick will be back in Sikeston, Mo., Monday, Dec. 6. Now is the time to act on this great opportunity. Every man and woman now losing hair should take advantage of this FREE CONSULTATION.

GUARANTEED
You will be given a written guarantee on a pro-rated basis from the beginning to the end.

Naturally we could not give you such a guarantee if it didn't work.

CAN'T HELP
Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. Ebb Hair Specialists cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, it you wait until you are slick bald and you are beyond help. So, if you still have hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair ... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

FREE CONSULTATION
Just take a few minutes of your time on Monday, Dec. 6 between 1 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and ask the Desk Clerk for M. J. Hornick's room number.

There is no charge or obligation ... all consultations are private, you will not be embarrassed in any way.

Public Service Rates Cut

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Union Electric Co. of St. Louis asked for permission to raise its rates $21, 495,000 a year but the Missouri Public Service Commission has slashed that by more than 75 per cent.

In an order issued Friday, a year after getting the request, the commission authorized Union Electric to raise its annual gross revenue no more than $3,352,984. The company is expected to file the new rates by Dec. 10.

The PSC suggested that the company increase almost all its rates 2.47 per cent across the board.

The commission rejected a company proposal to pass on to all customers any increases in fuel costs without prior PSC approval. The commission said that practice should continue to be limited to industrial and commercial rates.

The commission also rejected a request to charge higher rates for five summer months instead of the usual four months.

Union Electric was criticized for excessive costs in construction of the Labadie generating plant which opened in June, 1970. The PSC ordered an investigation of the cost overrun, and also an inquiry into plans for a new plant at Rush Island, Jefferson County.

Bruce Names Burns

Thurman Burns

Police chief Arthur Bruce today named Sgt. Thurman Burns as training officer for the city police force.

Burns' duties will include initiating a training program within the department apparently as a result of city manager Raymert Miller's controversial investigation into the department.

Following Miller's investigation in October, the lack of a training program within the city force was pinpointed as a major weakness of the department. Bruce was given the responsibility of beginning the program.

Bruce described the program as a "continuing program so that all officers will receive adequate training and periodical refresher courses in all phases of police work."

Burns has been assigned an office in the newly remodeled city administrative offices on New Madrid to be used as a classroom.

Bruce also said that arrangements are being made for a departmental firing range, which Burns will also head.

E.P. Man Returned

CHARLESTON — Charles Coffey of rural East Prairie was returned to the Mississippi County jail Friday from St. Louis by Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons. Simmons said St. Louis detectives picked up Coffey for Mississippi county authorities on a charge of issuing a bad check, filed in May.

Charges Expected

CHARLESTON — Charges of breaking, entering and stealing are expected to be filed today against Robert Earl Corbin, 25, Jerry Corbin, 22, and Danny Corbin, 20, all of Charleston, according to Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons.

The men were arrested early today in the apartment of their mother, Mrs. Mildred George, by police officers Robert Smith and Bill Groves.

According to Simmons police were called by Mrs. Janet Carden who reported a break-in at her apartment, 804 S. School St. Mrs. Carden reportedly told officers she suspected the Corbin men of entering her apartment. A search of Mrs. George's apartment, in the same building, revealed the stolen liquor and food items.

The men are being held in the Mississippi County jail.

Woman Charged After Accident

MARSTON — An 18-year-old Marston woman was charged with careless and imprudent driving Friday when the car she was driving went out of control and struck a second vehicle.

Highway patrol officials said Paulette Robinson, 18, of Portageville, was northbound on highway 61, one mile south of Marston Friday morning when she struck a southbound 61 International pickup truck driven by James Williams, 23, of Portageville.

The woman received minor cuts and a right shoulder injury. The man was apparently not injured.

More Telephones

There are 821 more telephones in use in the city this year than last year. These were the figures given by Southwest Bell manager Mark Rudloff.

Rudloff said the new lines represents a 7.8 per cent increase over last year.

This time last year there were 1,166 main lines in use for business customers and 1,031 extensions making a total of 2,197 business phones. In the new telephone directories recently released, there are 1,223 main business lines and 1,084 extensions for a total of 2,307 business lines.

The total business increase is five per cent.

Residential telephone usage has also increased from 5,515 main lines and 2,745 extensions last year to 5,879 main lines and 3,092 extensions this year. This is an 8.6 per cent increase over the past year.

Jewelry Store Hit

NEW MADRID — Thieves Thursday night entered LeSieur Jewelry store, 319 Main, avoiding a burglar alarm system by cutting a hole through the roof and going through an air conditioner duct.

In a preliminary check, items reported stolen were a .22 calibre rifle, .22 calibre revolver, 50 cigarette lighters, 15 necklaces, one tray of wedding bands, four clocks and one tray of masonic rings.

An attempt to crack a safe was thwarted when a tear gas mechanism was touched off and the thieves fled.

Gus LeSieur, owner, discovered the break-in at 8:30 a.m. today. Deputy sheriff Walter Ivy and the state highway patrol are investigating.

Naval Historian Will

Re-Trace Magellan's Course

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Samuel Eliot Morison, the famed naval historian, who is a hale 84 years old, plans to retrace by air and sea the first circumnavigation of the globe by Ferdinand Magellan 452 years ago.

The veteran author will be accompanied on the marathon journey by his friend Mauricio Obregon, a former Colombian diplomat, airman and explorer.

Morison is well grounded for the two-month trip. More than three decades ago he explored the Caribbean islands in a sailboat in order to write about the exploits of Christopher Columbus "from the clear blue water of experience."

The sea has always been an obsession of Morison who won the Pulitzer Prize in 1942 with his two-volume biography of Columbus, "Admiral of the Ocean Sea." The noted Harvard scholar also wrote the classic 15-volume history of "U.S. Naval Operations of World War II."

The impending Morison voyage will provide a sequel to his latest book, "The European Discovery of America: the Northern Voyages" published last April. The planned new book will also include passages on the southern explorations of such navigators as Sir Francis Drake and Juan Sebastian Elcano, the Spanish skipper who completed the global voyage after Magellan was slain by natives in the Philippines.

Morison's crew will include James F. Neilds, a Massachusetts textile manufacturer who flew the admiral up and down the North American coast to help him get material for his last book.

The writer and his party hope to duplicate the journey that Magellan began in 1519 from San Lucar near Seville with a fleet of five small vessels. The voyage was finally completed by Elcano with one vessel and only 18 survivors of the 270 who originally set out.

Obregon has already made a start on the new adventure, retracing the Magellan voyage from Seville to the Cape Verde Islands. Morison plans to join him early in December in Recife in the northern part of Brazil. This was the first New World landfall of Magellan's fleet. Morison and Obregon expect to head southwards to Rio de Janeiro, then Buenos Aires and then down the Argentine coast and across the straits. Neilds plans to join them there.

From that point, the party will journey up the coast of Chile and then 15,000 miles across the Pacific to Puka Puka, the Philippines, and the Spice Islands.

Picking up Elcano's trail they will span the Indian Ocean and round the tip of Africa for the voyage back to Spain.

Space Venture

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The United States and the Soviet Union were reported from Moscow to be ready to sign an agreement within two months that would lead to a joint manned space venture.

The National and Aeronautics and Space Administration in Washington said the report, that came out Friday, was a misunderstanding of a routine statement. Officials at Cape Kennedy, Fla., however, predicted a joint flight could come in 1974 or 1975.

Jack Tech, the embassy science attaché, said the Americans and the Russians issued this joint statement after the third meeting between the two sides since January. "The main purpose of this third working session was to discuss technical details of space hardware compatibility and to discuss a joint American-Soviet space mission. It is intended to sign a final agreement within two months."

NASA said this was a routine progress report of a group meeting between American and Soviet scientists pursuant to a previous agreement to design compatible spacecraft for both countries. NASA did not say who was responsible for the misunderstanding.

The first flight probably would be limited to testing common docking apparatus and a brief exchange of crewmen, the officials said.

The men are being held in the Mississippi County jail.

Nixon Ponders Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is spending the weekend pondering a full employment budget even as the Labor Department reports unemployment jumped up to 6 per cent in November after a two months' decline.

White House officials in Key Biscayne, Fla., where Nixon is reviewing his fiscal 1973 budget, said Friday the President's decision is virtually certain to result in deficit spending.

Under the full employment concept, forecasts of how much revenue the government will have to spend are based on the theory that unemployment will not exceed 4 per cent.

Unemployment exceeds that rate, a deficit results.

The unemployment rate has hovered around 6 per cent for the past year. It was 6.1 per cent in August, 6 per cent in September and 5.8 per cent in October.

The November jump in the unemployment rate—the ratio of job seekers to job holders—came even while the total number of working Americans rose to an all-time high of 80 million persons.

The White House called the increase in the unemployment rate unwelcome and Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson said it was unacceptable.

In releasing figures on another economic indicator, the government announced the index of wholesale prices increased 0.1 per cent last month.

But Herbert J. Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, noted that the index showed an overall decline for the three months of the wage-price freeze imposed Aug. 15 by President Nixon.

The index declined 0.2 per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis or 0.3 per cent on an actual basis between September and November.

Berlin Deadlock

BERLIN (AP) — The East-West Berlin wall talks deadlocked today.

There was no word when they would be resumed, although it was expected to be soon.

The West Berlin city parliament's Council of Elders met at the request of the Free Democratic party, which is seeking to block approval of the wall passage details as now formulated.

The Free Democrats, minor but pivotal partners in Bonn of Chancellor Willy Brandt's coalition, said they will not accept an agreement that limits West Berliners to only 30 visits a year to East Berlin or East Germany.

A party spokesman said such restrictions violated the letter and spirit of the four power deal on Berlin which the German talks are to implement.

Neither Claim Declaration

India, Pakistan At War

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indian forces struck in East Pakistan today and the government claimed they were advancing rapidly in a drive to establish an independent state and force the 80,000 Pakistani troops there to surrender.

The Indians acknowledged, however, that they had lost some territory in fighting along the border of West Pakistan, 1,000 miles to the west. The Indian air force launched air raids against eight key airfields in West Pakistan.

India accused Pakistan of declaring war. Without mentioning any declaration, President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan of Pakistan charged that India had begun the war and in a broadcast told his countrymen it was time "to give a crushing reply to the enemy."

Furthermore, a dispatch from Rawalpindi, West Pakistan, said there had been no declaration of war by either side but that a proclamation in the government gazette declared: "A state of war exists between Pakistan on one hand and India on the other."

Defense minister Jagjivan Ram of India told a solemn parliament that Indian troops had lost some ground around Ferozepore, an Indian city on the border 200 miles northwest of New Delhi. He did not say how much.

Both sides claimed they were inflicting damaging blows to the other side's air force. Radio Pakistan said it had destroyed 36 Indian aircraft. India claimed it destroyed 33 Pakistani planes while losing 11.

The Indian attacks included air raids on military airfields near the three major West Pakistani cities of Lahore, Karachi and Rawalpindi, the seat of Pakistan's government, Indian authorities said.

A spokesman in New Delhi, the Indian capital, said the Indian air force reported destroying a number of Pakistani planes on the ground in West Pakistan.

He said the Indian raiders met little opposition during their morning-long strikes, and that all of them had returned safely to their bases.

The spokesman said Indian air force planes also had been attacking military installations inside East Pakistan since early today, and that heavy fighting is going in most sections of the province. He said the thrust was aimed at helping the Bengali secessionists set up a government of their own inside East Pakistan.

He said Indian air force fighters and Pakistani jets engaged in numerous dogfights over East Pakistan and that seven Pakistani Sabre jets were shot down, four near Dacca and three near Jessore. The spokesman said no Indian planes had been downed.

But Radio Pakistan reported that 33 Indian planes were shot down in different sectors of East and West Pakistan.

United News of India reported that the Indian navy had intercepted a Pakistani ship, but did not say where. Monitors in India said Yahya made no mention in his broadcast address from Karachi of a formal declaration of war against India.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi earlier told the Indian Parliament that "this morning the government of West Pakistan declared war upon us." She did not say what form the declaration took, but United News of India quoted Pakistan radio reports as saying it was published in an extraordinary government gazette in Islamabad, the Pakistani capital.

Foreign Secretary T. N. Kaul told a news conference in New Delhi that India had not yet declared war on Pakistan, but added: "We are going to assert our right to self defense and we shall take every appropriate action to safeguard the integrity and the sovereignty of the country."

Defense Secretary K. B. Lal told the same news conference that Indian forces attacked Pakistani positions in West Pakistan at midnight in retaliation for strikes on at least 12 Indian airfields Friday. The attacks continued throughout the night, but India said they had been repulsed.

India's capital, New Delhi, and all of East and West Pakistan were blacked out Friday night as a precaution against air attacks. Foreign airlines suspended flights to the two nations and domestic flights were canceled.

The Indian government radio said that Pakistani air force planes attacked Srinagar, the capital of Kashmir, three times from 4 a.m. to 11 a.m. today, but that there was no damage.

India and Pakistan have fought two bloody wars over Kashmir, once in 1948 and again in 1965. India acknowledged that at least one Pakistani raider got as far as Agar, site of the Taj Mahal, 325 miles west of the Pakistani border and 120 miles south of New Delhi. However, no damage was reported to the city, which houses both a civilian and military air base.

Pakistan said it attacked the airfields in reprisal for Indian thrusts against West Pakistan on Friday. According to the Pakistani version, given by a military spokesman in Rawalpindi, the hostilities began about noon at an unidentified border post.

The spokesman said: "Regular Indian troops moved towards our border post manned by Pakistan scouts. On being challenged, the Indians opened up with small arms, wounding some of our men. The rangers fired back on the invaders in self-defense. The Indians opened up subsequently with their artillery."

SCHOOL CONSOLIDATION

School district reorganization has kept many of the nation's schools in a state of turmoil. Few topics on education stimulate as much heated discussion as school district consolidation or unification. And for good reason. What other local governmental action can affect the lives of so many people in a community in so many ways? Communities are built around schools. The local school district in the country's smaller communities is the center of interest and a major source of pride. How many communities dissolved after losing their local schools through unification?

There is no magic number of students which will assure the optimum in educational opportunities for children and youth. Geography, population density, and financial resources are some factors which must be considered in deciding what kind of school system a community wishes to provide. In some sparsely populated areas of the nation it would be virtually impossible to assemble up to 200 or 300 students in one attendance center. Great distances involving long bus routes make consolidation impractical. Yet there are numerous urban areas where population patterns, geography and resources warrant sizeable districts with large attendance centers.

Anytime a taxpayer is asked to surrender his voice by a reduction in the extent he is represented in governmental affairs, he should view such a proposal with the utmost skepticism. What are the motives behind the request? In the case of school mergers — are better educational programs and greater economy the real goals of the advocates — or, are their goals a wider tax base, a bigger, often bungling bureaucracy; and more power with less interference from taxpayers?

A hobby is hard work you wouldn't be doing for a living — right?

GAMES PEOPLE PLAY

Children's toys are safer this year than last, the Food and Drug Administration concluded in a report issued just in time for Christmas shopping. That is, they are less likely than before to cause bodily injury. Even so, Boston lawyer Edward M. Swartz estimates in his book Toys that Don't Care that 700,000 youngsters are hurt by their own playthings each year. A related and more difficult question is whether toys and games now on the market are psychologically safe. There are indications that, in some cases, the answer is "No."

"You should use caution with gimmicky, heavily advertised toys," asserts Dr. Carol Seefeldt of the University of Maryland's Early Childhood Education Center. She believes that "overly realistic toys don't help the child's development." Some of them may even warp normal development. One example is a torture kit, advertised as "X-rated for excitement," which includes a guillotine, spike cage, branding iron and other devices for use on a gore-painted doll.

Certain games aimed at the teen-age and young-adult markets may serve to reinforce undesirable personality traits. It is sometimes argued that the long-time favorite, Monopoly, encourages greed and ruthlessness in those who play it. Now Parker Brothers, which produced Monopoly sets, has come up with a new game that is certain to cause controversy. It is called The Godfather, and comes in a box shaped like a small violin case. On the playing board, the island of Manhattan is divided into neighborhoods. "The object of the game," the instructions say, "is to take control of a racket — bookmaking, extortion, loan sharking or hijacking — in as many neighborhoods as possible."

And then there are all the World War II games marketed by the Avalon Hill Co. These include, among many others, Blitzkrieg, Luftwaffe, Stalingrad, D-Day, and Origins of World War II. The games involve actual battle situations, are intellectually demanding, and can take many hours to play. Nevertheless, a Washington, D.C., psychiatrist believes that such games may be more than simply diverting. "War games," he says, "and especially those that show identification with a powerful military aggressor, even, perhaps, with the master race, have a very strong appeal for certain types of people."

The editor is in receipt of a letter from D. W. Gilmore, Chairman of the State Reorganization Commission and he enclosed with it a book showing their suggestions. We have looked through it very carefully and notice that it is worthwhile, but I don't think that the legislators will do anything about it, since the only changes they seem to be interested in is raising their salary. Maybe after the election they might do something with it. But, rather than just comment on it we want to reproduce here an editorial run in the Post Dispatch about it. We believe that parts of this editorial are right down our alley. Part of it we don't agree with, but maybe somebody else will.

Anyone taking a comprehensive view of Missouri state government, as the State Reorganization Commission has just done, would wonder where to start in bringing order out of confusion. The place where the "Little Hoover" commission chose to start was, logically, at the top — with the executive branch.

It is a branch with branches, limbs and twigs, but not as well constructed as a tree. The commission calls most state departments "mere paper assemblages of agencies." Just as one example, the Department of Education has no overall head and includes 30 elements reporting separately to the governor.

The result of such a jerry-built structure is that no governor can have proper knowledge or responsibility for the workings of his part of the government, and the public itself often cannot find out where the real responsibility lies. Aside from that, the system or lack of one is inefficient, unduly costly and unresponsive to changing and growing state needs for public service.

To provide for executive responsibility and public responsiveness, as well as efficiency, the commission proposes to reorganize the entire executive branch into 10 departments based on like functions. One result would be to replace the existing 87 lines of authority running directly to the governor to 10. Moreover, the new Office of Administration ("deputy governor") would aid the chief executive in overseeing daily operations, freeing him for policy supervision.

As examples of how functional reorganization would work, the Highway Patrol would be taken from the Highway Department and given to a new Public Safety Department; the Highway Department itself would be enlarged into a Department of Highways and Transportation; and the Department of Education would be cut in two, one part serving higher education and one primary and secondary education.

Functional reorganization has not dictated radical departures from what state experience has proved wise. Of the 10 departments, six would be directed by supervisors named by the governor, and four would be operated by boards similarly appointed. Thus highways (and transportation) would remain under the guidance of a bipartisan commission, a system that has worked well for Missouri, and so would conservation, which would be expanded into the whole demanding field of natural resources.

At a time when the public is greatly concerned about taxes and many legislators are proclaiming the need for governmental savings and efficiency, the reorganization plan should have widespread support. The two constitutional amendments and single reorganization bill recommended by the commission deserve clear sailing in the Legislature and at the polls.

Even so, it would be unrealistic to think there will be no opposition, for the disorganization of state government is not all accidental. It results in part from legislative jealousy of executive power, and in part from public suspicion of governmental, including legislative, power. That is why the Constitution itself is so cluttered and why there are so many boards and commissions going their separate ways.

But that system does not work well, and it will not work any better in the future as the state grows and its government inevitably grows with it. One way to assure better public control of that government is to make its administration answerable to the one governor that the public elects to administer it. That is the proper starting point for state reorganization.

LET'S FREEZE GOVERNMENT TOO

This editorial was published by the National Chamber as a full-page advertisement in three Washington newspapers as a means of informing the American people of the absolute need for reduced government spending. We reprint its message because we believe this same reasoning applies to local, county and state governments as well as the federal government:

A message addressed to the President and members of Congress...

Under the current program of controls and freezes, you are:

Asking working men and women to make sacrifices in holding down wage demands.

Asking businessmen to make sacrifices in holding down prices.

What sacrifices will government make? Government surely doesn't want to ask others to make sacrifices it isn't prepared to make itself. If your program to control inflation is to succeed, government must do two things:

1. Cut federal spending.
2. Restrain the creation of money through the Federal Reserve System.

It is unfair to control the economic decisions of people — while letting federal spending run rampant. Government must do its parts — it, too, must show self-discipline.

To halt inflation, Federal Government spending must be frozen — better yet, CUT, and the money supply restrained. Economic controls deal with the results of inflation. Frozen or reduced spending is one sure way to reduce inflationary pressures. As wage and price increases are deferred, so too should spending for new federal programs be deferred.

It is also time for Congress and all agencies of government to evaluate existing programs by their measurable results and get rid of the deadweight programs that have a proven record of ineffectiveness. Congress seldom reviews the need for legislation previously enacted.

Will you, Mr. President and members of Congress, face up to these needs?

Only you have the authority to investigate, hold hearings, ask questions and sit in judgment of these spending questions. If you don't know where and how to stop spending, then you should set up the proper mechanism to find the answers.

If the citizens of the United States must struggle under economic controls then government should, in all equity, restrain its own actions, with emphasis on reduced spending and a restrained money supply.

It is time for government to cooperate with the American taxpayer in this fight against inflation.

Mr. President and members of Congress, the responsibility is yours.

Advanced Step. In Dublin, after breaking a dance-course contract, Bertendro Brendan Green testified that Teacher Joy Russell-Smith had augmented her instruction with hugs and squeezes and given "the impression she was getting an affection for me," was nevertheless told by the court to pay Joy $84 damages.

When a man tells a dull story, he usually prefaces it by saying something like this: "I heard a funny story the other day. I know you will appreciate it." Then comes the dull story.

THE RIGHT TO REFRAIN. Hold your hat, and don't make any election bets yet. What may be one of the hottest issues of the campaign is about to hit the headlines, and it is an issue that could polarize public opinion sufficiently to influence the entire election.

The issue is an old one with a new twist. It is another phase of a problem which you perhaps thought was resolved in the 1966 campaigns, Right to Work. No, this is not a renewed attempt to repeal Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, although Vice-president Humphrey recently renewed his call for such repeal in a speech in Milwaukee.

What is at stake this time is a "Right to Refrain" law for federal employees. The proposed legislation would pass into law the language of an Executive Order issued in 1962 by then President John F. Kennedy, which said: "Employees of the Federal Government shall have, and shall be protected in the exercise of, the right, freely and without fear of penalty or reprisal, to form, join and assist any employee organization or to refrain from such activity."

The big union bosses have been wanting the "right to refrain" dropped. Since last September, one of those committees that President Johnson creates to look at every problem, has been reviewing the government's policy in its labor relations. It's been reported that the commission is going to recommend dropping the "right to refrain," thus delivering 3,000,000 Federal employees into the hands of the bosses who could begin extracting "fees,"—comparable to union membership dues—each month. How big a war chest would that put into the hands of the labor bosses? Suppose the "fees" were $3 a month per employee? The take would be $9 million a month.

The bills have been introduced in the Senate and in the House by almost a score of sponsors in each. They would bar the possibility of labor bosses realizing such a harvest in event that President Johnson, or any succeeding President, shall repeal the Executive Order issued by President Kennedy. If the bills are not acted on in the present session, Reed Larsen, Executive Vice President of the National Right to Work Committee, has promised to take the issue to the voters by pressing every Congressional and Presidential candidate to make clear his position on passage of the legislation.

Two years ago, 47 Congressmen who opposed Right to Work went down to defeat. The Federal Freedom interested in what's on top of a man's head than what's in it. We have already reported how the Army's close-cropped commander, Gen. William Westmoreland, took time out from his more pressing duties to dictate stern hair standards for GIs. We also told of the soldier at Ft. Meade, Md., who is awaiting court martial for a hairy nape.

Now we learn that teams of officers and noncoms at various posts around the country have been charged with the solemn mission of spying on and nabbing GIs who have been avoiding their barbers.

At Fort Bliss, Tex., for example, military officials have established "courtesy patrols" which are dedicated, according to the official decree, to improving "standards of appearance of all military personnel."

Wearing stormtrooper-style armbands marked "CP," the courtesy patrols roam about the post, stop automobiles, demand ID cards, note "uniform violations" and make "on-the-spot corrections."

An army spokesman claimed the courtesy patrols are "management tools" intended to check on "people who are taking care of unofficial business during duty time." He confirmed, however, that the patrols are also on the lookout for lengthy locks.

Even the weekend warriors of the Army Reserve are suffering the consequences of the Big Hair Scare. On October 8, Reserve Chief J. Milnor Roberts dispatched a memo ordering his commanders to trim some heads.

Quoting Gen. Westmoreland's original edict, Gen. Roberts instructed his subordinates that the published guidelines "represent the outer limits of neatness and grooming required the day before a haircut—not the day after.

of Choice Act of 1968 may be even more decisive. It is difficult to see how any candidate or elected official can oppose the bill. But some will, because they are beholden to the labor bosses.

I would be counted one with those who keep A sacred trust with Thee on Christmas morn. As hallelujahs ring, as hearts awake, Let me rejoice to know that Thou art born, And that my heart is richer for Thy sake, Thou art a glory that will never fade, O Child within a manger gently laid.—Melva Rorem.

SNOW-SANTA Sometimes when snow has fallen fast, We make a snow-man jolly; And make him round - like Santa Claus— And deck him out with holly.

We put a clay-pipe in his mouth— And find a gunny-sack Which we fill up with ever-greens And put upon his back.

We use black coal to make his eyes— And one piece for his nose— And then we use whatever's left For buttons on his clothes.

Then all-us-children stomp and shout And circle 'round and 'round— While Santa Claus just stands and smiles And doesn't make a sound! —H.S.D.

PUBLIC CURIOUS ABOUT BANKS

The purpose of advertising is to tell the citizens of the trade territory about the store's business, its merchandise, prices and service. It cannot be left to a potential customer to guess what the store does, what its policy is, and what service it offers.

A bank in Carlisle, Penn., inserted two advertisements weekly in its newspaper to answer questions asked by the public on subjects connected with banking. Certainly there is no better way of telling the public what it wants to know, and getting more interest in store activities, than by answering customer questions.

This idea could be profitably used by other business classifications. Insurance agents, stock brokers, realtors, public utilities, loan offices, and other business firms who seem to have a tough time making their advertising copy interesting could use the question and answer technique.

Questions can be obtained from customers in the store, by asking for letters or phone calls, and talking to salesmen, and clerks. No customer knows all about every business.

Inside Labor

Smash Nixon Drive On: Meany's personal hatred of president strengthens Mayor Lindsay's chances of presidential nomination

WASHINGTON— Usually that one-man offensive platoon, George Meany, doesn't get gastric attacks — he gives them. He doesn't just battle a political opponent, he surrounds him — or them. He's a specialist in going for the political jugular — so much so that his steaming personal hatred for Richard Nixon has torn the AFL-CIO from its traditional, formal non-partisanship, into what appears to be a pre-convention acceptance of any Democratic Presidential candidate — even New York Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Any previous insinuation that the AFL-CIO technically is anything but non-partisan has enraged the labor chief. Back in 1969 when the movement's executive council met in mid-winter session in Bal Harbour, Fla., one of its members, Bill Pollock, textile union leader, opined that something would have to be done to rebuild the Democratic party.

The 1969 session was held less than a month after Richard Nixon had taken office. Pollock observed that "we need to do something about revitalizing the Democratic party." Furious, Meany jumped him. Officially, Meany said, the Democratic party is no concern of the labor movement and under no circumstances should the labor movement do the work of the Democratic party.

Any insinuation of non-partisanship, thus, has been as sacrilegious in the AFL-CIO Council. They expect some 1,500 gobs. Council leader W.E. Wyckoff, local steel union chief whose official title is Staff Representative for the United Steelworkers of America headed by the powerful L.W. (Abe) Abel. Some steel union politics have been working with Mayor Lindsay.

Big John Lindsay, the political switch hitter, also has powerful United Auto Workers support. There are other unions waiting to see what he does in some of the primaries. He could be the dark horse the Democrats have been searching for— handsome, sleek, articulate, neo-isolationist, hero of every poncho-clad crowd from Manhattan's East Village to San Francisco's western hills.

Only George Meany's dislike of him has kept Lindsay from his own Phase Three— getting labor support. Meany did say he'd rather vote for Nixon than the New York Mayor. But that's over now. The personal hatred for Mr. Nixon has made political history.

Not in recent decades has Meany's labor movement declared war on a Presidential candidate before the national convention nominated him. Meany is the fiddler on the roof. But he has smacked tradition. It's a calculated risk. If he defeats Nixon he's the nation's most powerful civilian. If not...?

come— at the last minute. And the word in labor circles is that Jackson is to get the widest exposure possible.

Well, most of them sent telegrams. Why? Most of them could have made it without interfering with their votes in the Senate. The labor convention originally was scheduled to run through Tuesday, Nov. 23. Yet it was cut short at 4:05 p.m., Monday, Nov. 22.

There can, of course, be many interpretations of all this. Insiders are saying that Meany did not want to show any favorites, nor did he want to dilute the intensity of the anti-Nixon hatred and mockery which hurtled from the platform.

It seemed that leaders of the convention wanted it to be an anti-Nixon rally and that the presence of Democratic hopefuls would have given the appearance of a Democratic rally.

Thus there were no accolades. The field is wide open. The track is dry and fast. Moving up now is towering John Lindsay. His power bases are the youth who jumped and squealed rapturously during the Kennedy campaigns; the black communities who see His Honor as "our man;" the ultras who see even 1970 reformers as aged; and a whole gamut of libertarians who see Democratic national chairman Larry O'Brien as Genghis Khan.

Yet Mayor Lindsay is suddenly developing labor support. Not too much. But the freeze is broken. He is in Phase Two. For example, on Dec. 13 he will be the guest of honor at a banquet thrown by the Greater Canton, Ohio, AFL-CIO Council. They expect some 1,500 gobs. Council leader W.E. Some steel union politics have been working with Mayor Lindsay.

Big John Lindsay, the political switch hitter, also has powerful United Auto Workers support. There are other unions waiting to see what he does in some of the primaries. He could be the dark horse the Democrats have been searching for— handsome, sleek, articulate, neo-isolationist, hero of every poncho-clad crowd from Manhattan's East Village to San Francisco's western hills.

Only George Meany's dislike of him has kept Lindsay from his own Phase Three— getting labor support. Meany did say he'd rather vote for Nixon than the New York Mayor. But that's over now. The personal hatred for Mr. Nixon has made political history.

Not in recent decades has Meany's labor movement declared war on a Presidential candidate before the national convention nominated him. Meany is the fiddler on the roof. But he has smacked tradition. It's a calculated risk. If he defeats Nixon he's the nation's most powerful civilian. If not...?

Ann Landers

No Make-Up Presents Funny Face Problem

Dear Ann Landers: I am driving 30 miles to mail this letter. I'd die if anyone knew about my problem.

I have been married seven months and my husband has never seen me without makeup. I do my face twice a day - once at noon and again before I go to bed at night. It takes me about 40 minutes - including hair combing. I just learned that I am pregnant and I'm very excited about it. I realize, however, that with a brand new baby I won't have so much free time. Also I admit I am getting awfully tired playing the role of the 24-hour beauty. It's darned exhausting.

My problem is, Ann, I look like a totally different person with my makeup off. I hate for my husband to see how plain I really am. Do you have any advice for me? -Afraid To Unmask

Dear Afraid: Something is drastically wrong with your marriage if you are so dependent on makeup that you are afraid to face your husband without it. Also something is drastically wrong with your makeup if it makes you look like a different person.

I hope the new baby will give you the confidence you need to remove your makeup at night and leave it off until or unless you are going somewhere. Also, I suggest that really want them that often. You get professional counseling. Yeah - this goes for parents, on the use of makeup, too.

Cosmetics should help to accentuate your best features instead of making you look like a different person.

Dear Ann Landers: We've been married ten years and have four children. The problem is my parents. They have been coming to our house every Sunday for the last two years when we moved to this neighborhood. My mother takes over the conversation and always manages to get into an argument with my husband. He told me the other day that he is sick of it and I don't blame him.

Gerry works hard six days a week and Sunday is the only day he can relax and enjoy his family. Is it fair that we have to have my folks here every single Sunday? How can I get the message across without driving them away forever? - Temple, Texas Woes.

Dear Temp: Make plans now for next Sunday. Inform your mother that you'll be away. Two weeks later - the same. Two weeks after that get on a new footing - "We'll let you know, etc." Your Sundays will never be your own unless you break the cycle. It's a mistake to let anyone assume they have

Dear Ann Landers: O.K. So a wife is supposed to forgive her husband who cheats in Vietnam. Ann Landers says so. But what about the woman's "physical needs" as you put it. While her soldier husband is finding companionship and solace overseas what is SHE supposed to do? And don't give me that old mid-Victorian eyewash about a man's needs being greater than a woman's. You know better. The question is this: If she does likewise, is she to be forgiven too? A yes or a no will do. - The Scarlet Letter

Dear Scarlet: The answer is yes. Thanks for making my Saturday work easy. Confidential to Marijuana Beat: Sorry, you're wrong. Gene Krupa, one of the greatest drummers of all time said pot did nothing for his musical ability - it only loused him up.

Is Alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet "Alcoholism - Hope And Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Panthers Claim BHS Title

BERNIE — If you didn't catch the championship game of the 11th annual Mules invitational basketball tournament Friday night, mark Dec. 7 on your calendar. That's the date the two New Madrid county rivals clash in what may be classified as an instant replay of Friday night's contest that was claimed by Lilbourn 73-69 over Matthews. The casts are likely to be the same, but the outcome could be different, but coach Larry Warren's cagers hold the advantage because they will host the bout. Friday night's battle was a typical match of the two New Madrid county powers. Both showed strong rebounding, tough defense and deadly shooting, but a defensive lapse in the third quarter proved fatal for the Pirates. The Daily Standard's sixth ranked Panthers rushed from a 37-28 halftime deficit into a 54-51 lead with a big 26 point explosion against the paper's seventh ranked Pirates. Matthews led most of the contest after grabbing an 18-12 lead in the first period, they increased that margin to nine points by half and looked as if the game was well in hand before Lilbourn returned from a halftime discussion with coach Larry Warrennd pressed its way into the lead, using a fast moving fast break to close the

before David Williams iced the victory with five seconds left with a pair of free shots after being fouled moments after the Pirates failed to tie the score on a pair of charity shots. Tommy Wells put in 26 points to head the victory march of Lilbourn while Raymond Bledsoe and Gary McWaters headed up the Pirates offense with 17 markers.

"We played a pretty decent game," coach Sam Wiggins of Matthews noted. "Our defense gave way in the third quarter when they scored 13 field goals." Matthews played its final two games in the tournament without high scoring Audie Davis who was out of action with a throat ailment. The frustration of losing the title was shortlived for the Pirates and their fans after it was announced that the MHS group was winners of the sportsmanship honors. Puxico walked away with the consolation prize by blasting the host 72-53 behind the 20 point offensive leadership of Mike Hill. Les Brown topped Bernie scoring with 18 points.

Bluff Loses Opener

SPRINGFIELD — Coach Tom Hoover's debut as varsity coach of the Poplar Bluff Mules was an unpleasant one Friday night as his cagers dropped an 82-73 decision to Kickapoo high.

advantage of Mule fouls and notched the win from the charity line where they out-scored the visitors 20-7.

Kirk May, Brent Huffst and Mark Eddleman led the assault on the host with 24, 22 and 19 point totals. Curtis Hinton was the top Mule scorer with 20 points.

Bluff won the B-game, 56-46.

Reindeer Out Run Tribe

CLARKTON — A torrid first quarter led the Clarkton Reindeer to their fourth win of the campaign over the mistake-riddled Kenneth Indians, 51-44, on their home court Friday night. Johnny McGee led the win for Clarkton with 22 points. McKinney was tops for the Indians with 10.

Clarkton's first quarter play gave them the win in the game as they outscored Kennett 19-8 in that frame. Although Kennett held them even the rest of the way, the Reindeer had enough for the win. In the second quarter both teams scored thirteen points to make the count at half read 32-21.

Kennett came out of the dressing room an improved team and actually outscored the more experienced Clarkton quintet 12-8 in the third period to make the score 40-33 entering the last period. In that last period the Indians could make no headway as both teams scored eleven to make the final score 51-44 and give the Reindeer a split of the night's action. They had lost the "B" game beforehand, 42-21, to Kennett. Terry Williams led the win for Kennett with 11. Randy Wiseman scored almost half of the baby Reindeer points with 10.

McCulloch Paces NPHS

WARDELL — The North Pemiscot Mustangs won their fourth basketball game of the season here Friday night beating Luxora, Ark. 81-66.

NPHS took a commanding lead in the first period 18-8 and added 10 more points in the second period to lead 45-25 at the half and held on as the Luxora team came fighting back in the second half.

Terry McCulloch led the Mustang attack with 22 points. Eddie Blackman was the defensive standout pulling down 15 rebounds. Jack Gatsen hit 25 for the losers.

North Pemiscot took the B game 59-45 with Joe Jennings scoring 19 and Jerry Diges hit 15 for the Arkansas team.

MATTHEWS' Raymond Bledsoe (45) eyes the basket while Lilbourn's Tommy Wells eyes him during the championship game of the Bernie invitational tournament Friday night. Wells led Bernie to the 73-69 victory with 26 points while Bledsoe topped MHS scoring with 17 markers.

Tourney's Next Week

Two tournaments have opening round action in the SEMO area Monday night. At Essex, the Richland R-1 schools basketball tournament has three games Monday night and there will be two games at East Prairie in the "B" team tournament.

At Richland, the Number one-seeded Rebels play St. Vincents in the opening game at 6:00 p.m. Van Buren, seeded number four plays Ellsinore at 7:30 p.m., and number two seeded Hayti plays Twin Rivers at 9:00 p.m.

At East Prairie, the number one seeded Oran Eagles oppose ISC at 6:30 p.m. and number four seeded Kelly plays Portageville at 8 p.m.

Kelly Survives Oran Threat

ORAN — The Kelly Hawks moved into the finals of the Oran invitational basketball tournament here Friday night with a 78-74 victory over the host Eagles and East Prairie whipped Scott City 87-44 in the losers bracket.

The two main causes for the Hawks took advantage of several turnovers and outscored the Eagles by 10 points and three missed shots within the last 50 seconds of the game.

Coach Nick Lanpher's KHS squad remained unbeaten. Oran jumped out in front in the first period and led by five points 23-18 after the initial quarter.

In the second quarter the Hawks took advantage of the bad passes and surged ahead by 10 points to lead 41-36 at the half.

Kelly built the lead up to three more points in the third period as they pumped in 26 to the Eagles 23. In the last period Oran came roaring back to get within one point with 50 seconds left but missed their shots when the teams exchanged opportunities to score in the last seconds.

Mike Morrow led the Hawk offense with 28 points Randy Deason scoring 23. Oran was led by Otis Burley with 17 and Paul Taylor with 15.

The East Prairie Eagles scored 19 points in the first period to take a 19-9 point advantage in winning the championship in the losers bracket.

The Eagles kept pouring in the points in the second quarter as they built up a 42-43 halftime lead.

The last half was more of the same as the Rams were unable to stop the Eagle attack falling behind in the third period 26-13 and scoring only eight in the last quarter while the Eagles were pouring in 19.

The Amick brothers, Mark and Rand scored 15 and 11 respectively to lead the Scott Rams.

Joe Moss was high for the Eagles with 19 points.

Kelly and Scott Central play for the Championship Saturday night following the Charleston and Oran game at 7:00 Scoring:

Hale Stars For SEMO

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Three Rivers junior college Transfers, Paul Hale of Morley and Fred Johnson of Oran, played key roles in Southeast Missouri State College's 79-78 victory over the University of Missouri St. Louis Friday night.

Hale flipped in a free throw with 23 seconds left in the game to give the Indians the lead and eventual victory after stealing the ball and driving in for a layup and Johnson led all scorers with 26 points as SEMO state won its second straight game of the season.

Johnson was aided by Jim Anderson, who scored 21, and the Indians' 6-5 postman, Andrew Reid, who pumped in 18 points and pulled down 14 rebounds. Other leading rebounders for Cape were Johnson and Anderson with 11 and eight, respectively. Ron Carkum, a 6-foot-5 forward led the Rivermen with 19 points. Carkum also had 21 rebounds for high-game honors. Mike Hayes with 16, 6-foot-7 center Greg Daust with 11, and Mark Bensen with 12 were the other Rivermen to score in double figures.

Neither team shot well. Cape State hit just 33.9 per cent from the floor and the Rivermen were successful on 36.3 per cent of their field shots. The Riverman outrebounced Cape, 65-39.

Cape had a nine-point edge at half, 44-35. Just after half, the Rivermen caught Cape and the game was close the rest of the way. Finally, with 2:49 left to play, SEMO took a three point lead and held it the rest of the way.

Gape plays next Wednesday night at Normal, Illinois, against Illinois State College.

Risco Tops GHS

GIDEON — Risco used a tight man - to - man defense to hold coach Richard Pyland's Bulldog cagers to eight points in each of the first three quarters while chalking up 31 and then held on as the teams played on even terms in the final quarter to post a 46-40 New Madrid county league win Friday night.

Johnson and Stobaugh teamed for 30 of the Golden Tigers points, netting 16 and 14 markers respectively. Whitehead had 19 points for the Bulldogs top effort.

Gideon salvaged a split as the Bulldog junior varsity posted a 49-47 victory behind the 29 points of Curtis Coleman. Holmes and Davis scored 13 points each for Risco.

Quarterbacks

Only two quarterbacks have led the NFL in passing two seasons in a row. Cecil Isbell of Green Bay did it in 1941-42 and Milt Plum of Cleveland did it in 1960-61.

Liberty Loses

ELLINGTON -- An error plagued Liberty team lost its initial game of the basketball season to Ellington here Tuesday night in a close game, 75-73. Jerry Turner and Gary Pewitt combined for 46 points to lead the win for the Whippets. Marshall Chowning and Dave Campbell led the losers with 17 and 21 points respectively. The win was Ellington's fifth in six games.

The full court press hurt Liberty and Ellington took a first period lead 19-14. The Whippets widened that lead to 39-31 at half before Chowning and Campbell began to connect. The Liberty team actually erased the Whippet lead and took a slim one point lead, 54-43, into the final quarter. However, the Ellington team retained its composure and outscored the visitors 22-19 to cop the win.

Liberty won the JV contest to give them a split of the night's action, 73-61. Miller and Myers led the win with 20 points each. Terry Mann led the Ellington JV team with 19. Scoring:

Bismarck Tops

Arcadia Valley

ARCADIA -- Coach David Bone's Arcadia Valley basketball team went down to defeat 71-58 to Bismarck here Tuesday night.

Bismarck had a 19 point scoring performance by Joe Wright to lead the attack.

Aaron Boyd was high for Arcadia Valley with 29 points.

Arcadia Valley is 2-5 for the season and Bismarck is 1-4. Bismarck held a 25-18 points advantage after the first period and a 39-39 halftime lead.

Arcadia Valley made a mild comeback in the third period scoring 18 to Bismarck's 12. The last period belonged to Bismarck 20-10.

Bismarck won the B game 42-25 as Howell scored 13 for the winners. Gay was high for the losers with 8.

Wipfler Leads

Dragon Win

STE. GENEVIEVE -- Led by Dave Wipfler and Joe Rozier, the Valle of Ste. Genevieve Dragons won their first game of the season over College High of Cape, 74-43. Wipfler led all scorers with 26 and Rozier added 21 as the Dragons ran wild over a Prep team that couldn't seem to find the goal. College High scored just 12 times from the field. Niswonger led Prep scorers with 12 points.

Valle committed many first game mistakes in the first quarter, but thanks to the quiet Prep gunners, the Dragons led 13-5 after one frame. Production for both teams picked up in the second period and the score at half was 33-19, Valle.

The rout continued in the second half as Valle cominated the scoring 41-24. The loss evened College High's record at 1-1.

Valle also won the "B" game, 49-17, as Dave Winners led the scoring with 21 points. Engelman scored 8 for the losers.

Couch In Final

MYRTLE -- Coach Stan Whitson's Couch Indians moved into the finals of their own invitational basketball tournament here Friday night by downing Thayer 58-51 and Mammoth Springs Ark edged Alton 54-52 for the opportunity to meet the Indians Saturday night to decide the championship.

Couch and Thayer played a controlled offense game in which neither team could pull away from the other.

Thayer took a 19-15 point lead after the initial period but Couch came back in the second quarter to pull within one point at the half 34-33.

Both teams scored nine points in the third period and Couch broke the game open in the last period hitting 16 points to only nine for Thayer.

Boyd Hollis was high for Couch with 16 and Tom Wyatt hit 19 for the losers.

Mammoth Springs had a harder time than Couch as they say their lead dwindle to only two before the buzzer sounded to end the game.

Mammoth Spring is the only team to defeat the Indians so they will have a chance to redeem themselves Saturday night.

South Iron Posts

8th Straight Win

ANNAPOLIS -- Twenty-five points by 6-foot-3 forward Gerald Stevens and the return to action of 6-foot-4 center Steve Matchell gave the South Iron Panthers the needed impetus to claim their eight win in a row this season. The final score of 74-64 was also the fifth loss in eight games for the Lesterville Bearcats. Lesterville was led by Bill Lester who pumped in 22 points from his forward position.

South Iron showed who was in command in the first period when they outscored the visitors, 25-17. They increased that lead to 43-31 by halftime and then coasted to the win. In the second half, Lesterville did manage to cop the edge in the second half, 33-31, but it was not nearly enough and the Panthers remain undefeated.

South Iron also took the "B" game, 36-29 as Adams scored 16 to lead the way. Hinton had nine fore the losers.

Kirkman Stars

SUMMERVILLE -- Led by the scoring and rebounding of Mike Kirkman, the Summerville Wildcats raced to their third victory in five games this year with a 65-59 decision over the Norwood Pirates. Kirman scored 19 points and pulled down 17 rebounds to spark the win. Gary Fodge led the losers in scoring and on the boards with 18 markers and 14 rebounds.

The game was close for a half. Summerville led at half, 33-29, after having the edge 14-12 after the first quarter. In the third period the Pirates outscored their hosts, 16-11, to assume a one point lead, 45-44, entering the final period. However, in that last frame, the Wildcats outscored their visitors, 21-14, to take the double win.

It was a double win since the hosts had also laid claim to the "B" contest, their seventh JV win in eight tries, this time by the score of 70-18. Henry led with 19 for the winners and Royal scored exactly half of the losers total.

Summerville plays next against Bunker Saturday night at home with the starting time 6:30.

ELLINGTON -- Ellington took a surprisingly easy victory from Bunker here Friday night 80-57. It was Ellington sixth win in seven games. Bunker is 4-2.

Bunker led by one after the first period, 13-12. Ellington however, started to pull away in the second period and never trailed in the second half. At half, it was 31-24.

Ellington came out hot in the second half, outscoring the favored Bunker team 25-14 to take a 56-38 lead into the final period. Reserves, who figured they would have a night off, played the final frame as Ellington outscored Bunker 24-19 to take the win, 80-57.

Ellington also won the JV encounter, 52-36. Roberts was tops for the winners with 18 and Boewen led Bunker with 13.

Liberty Evens

Season Mark

MOUNTAIN VIEW -- The Liberty Eagles evened their season's record up at the expense of Eminence here Friday night, 101-49. The Eagles completely overpowered their visitors, running Eminence's record to 1-5. Campbell and Smith led for Liberty with 25 and 22 points respectively. Titer led Eminence with 21.

The game was never close. The much more powerful Liberty team ran out to a 24-5 first period lead and were never headed. Their lead at half was 49-14 and they unloaded the bench in the second half with eleven boys scoring for the Eagles in all. A 28-14 third period edge gave Liberty an unstoppable lead of 77-28 going into the last frame. Even with the reserves playing, the Eagles claimed the last period edge, 24-21, to make the final score 101-49 and give liberty a sweep of the night's action, since they had romped to a 107-27 JV win prior. Cecil Miller outscored the entire Eminence team, as he pumped in 31 to lead the winners. Wood led Eminence with eight.

There's No Business Like Farm Business

By Editorial Research Reports
WASHINGTON -- The risks of investing in Broadway shows are minimal compared to those routinely faced by the nation's farmers. Last year's major hazard was southern corn leaf blight, which ruined around 10 per cent of the crop. It was feared that a recurrence of the disease could wipe out as much as 50 per cent of the 1971 corn harvest. Instead, corn production this year is expected to reach 5.4 million bushels -- 31 per cent more than in 1970, and a record.

The bumper crop of corn and of other feed grains is good news for consumers, because it assures ample supplies of fodder for cattle, hogs, sheep, dairy cows, and poultry. For farmers, the news is not so good. Corn now is selling at eight cents or more a bushel under the federal support level of $1.08.

In an effort to avoid a repetition of this year's feed-grain glut, Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin recently increased by 25 per cent the amount of acreage farmers must keep out of production in 1972 to qualify for government loans and payments. The federal payment for idled land -- based on the number of bushels that otherwise would have been produced on it -- likewise was raised by 25 per cent. The 1972 program could cost almost half again as much as this year's $1.2 billion.

Next year may also bring a revival of interest in the question of rural development. In proposing a $1.1 billion revenue-sharing program for rural development last March, President Nixon noted: "This nation's farms are among our most efficient producers, and they are of central importance to a strong future for rural America." However, an administration bill embodying the President's program has not advanced beyond the hearings stage.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D Minn.) recently pointed up the need for rural development by noting that "three million farms have disappeared in the technological revolution that is still, sweeping American agriculture. More than 30 million people have abandoned the small farms and towns for the cities, so that 75 per cent of our people are crowded onto less than 2 per cent of our land ... We must head toward a rural-urban balance -- a healthy balance between the people and the land."

In a sense, rural areas already are being developed privately. Numerous large manufacturing companies have entered agriculture, hoping to reap profits through economies of scale. In a recent series of articles on this "agribusiness," The Washington Post directed attention to Tennessee, "with its $4.3 billion in assets and its ability to employ its own land, tractors, pesticides, oil, processing plants, and marketing system."

Tennessee is prospering so far, but some other businesses that went into farming have found themselves out of their depth. Farm Journal, observing that "at least five publicly financed superfarm ventures have fizzled out in the past few months," asserted that the "financially oriented brass didn't really understand farming."

News of these failures seems to have buoyed the spirits of family farmers.

On The Fence Row

By Tom Brown

Area Agronomy Specialist
BLOOMFIELD -- Several questions from farmers have been coming to the University Extension Center recently to the danger of grazing grain sorghum stubble.

There is danger of prussic acid poisoning of cattle that are grazing stubble of grain sorghum, sudangrass, sorghum-sudan crosses, and other sorghum crops. Livestock producers and dairymen should be aware of this danger and take steps to avoid it. In spite of the danger involved, such stalk fields will provide lots of grazing in many cases.

Fall is the season when conditions are usually most favorable for prussic acid poisoning. Prussic acid is most apt to form when plants have been stunted by frost, drought, and freezing or near freezing temperatures. Forage crops are likely to be most dangerous when plants are less than 18 inches high. Farmers should be especially cautious of plants that are wilted following frost. Fields containing such plants may be grazed again after normal growth resumes. Such fields are absolutely safe for grazing after the plants are dead and thoroughly cured. Neither sudan grass or sorghum-sudan crosses are dangerous when preserved as hay or silage after the ensiling process is complete.

Visible signs of prussic acid poisoning are labored breathing, spasms, or staggering; however, animals sometimes die without showing such symptoms. If cattle become poisoned from prussic acid, they should be removed from the field, and a veterinarian should be called immediately. Treatment must often be administered quickly to avoid death.

Floyd Matthews

A field of cotton is checked at harvest time by Richard McIntosh, Extension farm management specialist, and K. M. and Delane Streeter, Painton. The Streeters operate a grain and cotton farm.

Streeter's Win Award

The addition of on the-farm grain storage has allowed a more orderly marketing of crops on the 1,020-acre farm run by K. M. Streeter and his son Delane in Scott County.

Three bins with a capacity for 41,000 bushels were added to the farm in 1969. This brought the storage capacity to 57,000 bushels on the farm.

Grain produced on the farm -- and that includes corn, soybeans, grain sorghum, and wheat -- can be put into storage and marketed throughout the following year. This allows the Streeters to avoid the traditionally low market prices at harvest time.

In recognition of their management ability, the two Streeter families have been named to receive a State Farm Management Award by the Extension Division of the University of Missouri-Columbia.

In telling about their grain marketing, K.M. Streeter said, "Usually we market the grain by the following spring. We try to move it in January, February, and March before we get into planting time. However, we have held corn until July and August waiting for the best price," he added.

Since most of the acreage is Sharkey clay or Waverly silt loam, most of the benefit from land grading has come from improved drainage and not from irrigation, the Streeters have found.

"We had too much water this past summer," K.M. said. "If it hadn't been for the graded fields we would have lost some of the crops."

"Even on the graded ground the wet weather hurt. The kind amount and when to apply fertilizer is one of the first decisions a farmer must make when planting wheat this fall," John Garrett, area agronomy specialist, says. If your soil hasn't been tested during the past three or four years, a soil sample should be taken to determine lime and fertilizer needs. Wheat does best in a pH range from 5.5 to 6.5. If lime is needed, it should be applied according to recommendations.

Wheat fertilization can be broken down into three different categories: (1) starter at planting; (2) time of nitrogen application; and (3) rate of nitrogen application. A starter is usually considered to be a complete fertilizer, containing a small amount of nitrogen, phosphate and potash. A starter should always be applied at planting, on sandy and silt loam soils that test medium to low in phosphate and potash. Little or no direct response can be expected on heavy textured soils testing high to very high in these elements.

Results of six years research show that a starter of 10 to 12 pounds nitrogen and 30 to 50 pounds of phosphate and potash at planting increased yields on all soils except those testing high to very high. The increase was 6.4 bushels on sandy soils, 2.7 on clays and 35.3 on very low testing silt loam soils.

Starters have not directly increased yields enough on high testing soils to offset fertilizer cost. However, 90% or more of our wheat is followed by soybeans. It is well known that soybean yields are usually increased if they follow a well fertilized crop. Due to this increase in yield a starter is always recommended unless the soil tests very, very high.

In wheat experiments conducted at the Delta Center, nitrogen was applied at four different times, planting - January - March - and April. The same rate of nitrogen was used at each time.

Highest yields were produced on each soil type when the N was applied from February 15 to March 15. The March topdressing increased yields an average of 4.9 bushels on sandy soils. The increase for four of these six years was 7.3 bushels per acre. The six year average increase was 3.1 on sandy loam and 4.6 on clay soils.

The soybeans are sold at the terminal markets for the export trade.

The corn is usually sold on contract to local elevators. The Streeters hold the corn in their bins until it is needed by the elevators for mixing feed.

This past cropping season the Streeters raised 575 acres of soybeans, 200 acres of milo, 75 acres of wheat, and almost 100 acres of cotton.

They didn't plant any corn this year because of the threat of blight and the lack of blight resistant seed corn. Blight the previous year had cut their corn yields to 40 bushels per acre.

The milo turned out to be a good crop, K.M. said. It produced 6,000 pounds per acre. "It may pay out as much as corn," K.M. added.

We didn't have to have special equipment to harvest the milo and we didn't have to dry any of it this year, he added.

However, K.M. said, if we can get a crop in by April 15, we'll go back to corn again next year.

The Streeters have put some 300 acres of crop ground to grade. Since starting the grading in 1965, they've leveled from 40 to 70 acres a year.

but it didn't drown out any of thyfields," he added.

For the dry years, they do have irrigation pumps and a half mile of main line pipe.

K.M. Streeter and his wife Elsie have progressed from tenants in 1958 to owners of the farming operation in 1971.

Of the 1,020 acres, 920 are owned by Mr. and Mrs. K. M. Streeter and the remaining 100 acres are owned by the father-son partnership. The 100 acres were purchased after Delane and his wife Gwenell became active partners in the farming operation in 1968.

Future plans include the addition of more acreage and some cattle.

Current plans are to first add a cow herd and then work into a confinement feeding lot for steers.

"Livestock will even out the use of our labor during the year," K.M. said. "With row crops there's part of the year when you're not working."

Livestock won't be new to the farming operation. K.M. used to pasture and feed out up to 150 steers a year. In addition he had a 25-cow beef herd which was sold in 1965. Streeter also used to feed out some 200 hogs a year.

Among improvements on the farm is the remodeled home for Delane and Gwenell. They have two children, Madrigail, 5, and Marcus, 1.

Dear Santa,
My name is Suzanne Lewis and I am seven years old. Would you please bring me a blackboard, a puppet, and a Cinderella Watch.
Please remember my sisters and brother and my dog, Heidi.
Thank you
Suzanne Lewis

Dear Santa,
My name is Lynne Lewis, and I am three years old.
Please bring me a Smarty Pants doll, a pair of skates, and a telephone. Also, please don't forget my brother Keith, and my sisters, Suzanne and Karne.
Love
Lynne Lewis

Dear Santa,
I am a little boy 7 years old. I go to the R. A. Doyle School, and am in the 2nd grade.
Please bring to me for Christmas, a sports car, a cowboy suit, a walkie talkie and a Rabbit Hunt game.
Please remember my Teacher, Mrs. Sue Bennett. Also my Sunday School Teacher Mrs. Bain and my mother.
Love
Homer Lee Bratton.

Dear Santa,
It is time for you to visit all the good boys and girls again. I have been a very good girl. I am 7 years old, and in the second grade. For Christmas I want:

Popcorn maker, dishes, doll, shoes, skates, books, clothes, Table and chairs, Phonograph, Baloney, Cards, and a game. Don't forget all the other boys and girls. My Mama and Daddy. My sisters and brothers. And my friends. And my good friend Mary.

I love you --
Karen Merideth Sikeston

Dear Santa Claus,
My name is Eric Ritch. I live in Dexter, Mo. I am 13 months old. I want a Mother Goose Story Book, a rocking chair, & a Fisher Price Barn. Please remember all my aunts & uncles.
Eric Ritch
Dexter

Dear Santa,
We have been very good this year, so we hope you will bring us some nice things. If you can, please bring us toys and clothes. Mommy and Daddy would like a new car.

Don't forget Grandma and Grandpa Hughes. Please remember the children who don't get enough food and clothing.

DECEMBER SALES

TUES. DEC. 7th & TUES. DEC. 21st 1971
ATTENTION IMPLEMENT DEALERS AND FARMERS:
THE FALL AND WINTER RUSH IS ON:

DEAR FRIENDS:
This has been a great year for the farmers in our area of Southeast Missouri. We have had one of the highest productive crop years here in SMO that we have had in a long time. The wheat, corn, cotton and bean yields have been terrific. This has stimulated a great demand for good, clean tractors, implements and harvesting tools. The demand in December will be great as there are many farmers wanting to buy before the first of the year. Our advice to you would be to consign your tractors and implements to our December sales for we are expecting the market to be better than it has been in the past.

If we can be of any service to you as a seller or buyer please feel free to call.

Arrange your business in order that you might attend all of our sales the first and third Tuesdays of each month as a buyer or seller. We now have one of the largest sales of its kind in the world and no doubt it will be much larger than ever before in the near future.

French ladies of St. Louis surely copied Mrs. Clark's fashionable gowns and, as Missouri matured as a state, the dress of its women would become more a composite of styles. The commingling also would be found in the food served in the French and American households. Undoubtedly Julia Clark and, without question, her successor, Marguerite de Reille McNair, served frequent French dishes. The recipes of the old French cuisine of early Missouri were not recorded by the Creole wives since they could not write. Ingredients of their favored gumbos become obvious from the vegetables raised in their gardens and by a study of similar stews which are popular still. By deduction, therefore, the Missouri gumbo of 1820 and 1821 consisted of various combinations of chicken and crawfish, okra, lima beans and corn cut off the cob. Crabs and oysters, and later tomatoes, were added when they became available.

Seeds imported from Paris and advertised by a St. Louis merchant in 1818 included "Cabbage seeds of all kinds, Collyflower, Broccoli of divers kinds, with a choice selection of herb seeds." In addition to dishes made with the vegetables, French wives favored fricassees of available meats such as bear, turkey and wild cattle. Cordials and wines were distilled from natural fruits. For dessert, they prepared croquecigoles, a cookie made from eggs, brown sugar, milk and nutmeg.

A shortage of bread supplies caused a minor stir early in the history of St. Louis. One writer noted that three-fourths of the early population of St. Louis were hunters and boatmen to the exclusion of other occupations. While the population of St. Genevieve was agricultural, that of St. Louis did not till the common fields assiduously enough to raise grain for its own bread. Neighbors in the name of rivalry, dubbed St. Louis Pain Court, meaning short loaf or short of provisions. The situation was remedied to a certain extent and, in later years, when a bakery opened, the picturesque two-wheeled cart for delivering long loaves of bread must have been put to use to preserve the traditional image of a French village.

No criticism could be found of the attention or lack of attention paid by the French to the distillation of favored beverages such as wine made of currants and liqueur or cordials made from other native berries. One recipe for "cider and champagne" printed in an 1820 newspaper called for the fermenting of a liquid combining brown sugar, water and yeast with tartaric acid. Coffee served at the French table most frequently as a substitute made of rye since the genuine article cost 62 to 75 cents a pound -- down to 50 cents when a steamboat arrived. Coffee was so special it was reserved for the master of the house and only for his breakfast.

Spices, available in Missouri only by import, were found in the recipes of Mrs. Clark indicative of her early years spent in more developed areas of Virginia. Representative is her recipe for catchup preserved in the same leather-bound memorandum book which contained inventories of her personal clothes.

Pound your walnuts, in a mortar when large enough to pickel, strain of the liquor clear, or let it stand to settle and clear, to every quart thus cleared, add one ounce of cloves, one of black pepper, one of ginger, finely bruised, one ounce of salt, a good handful of horse radish, eight shalots and a clove or two of garlic, boil it about half an hour or until clear, take off all scum before taking it off the fire add a pint of best vinegar let it come to a boil take it off strain it through flannel, when cool bottle it right for use.

Most significant of the recipes recorded by St. Louis women was one for fried venison found among the notes of Harriet Stokes (Fallon), a girl reared in England, married to John O'Fallon, Missouri's first adjutant general appointed by Governor McNair. Her dish included cooking methods nostalgic of her native land, a touch of wine representing the flavor of her Missouri home, all added to the basic deer meat so widely available even on the most remote American frontier.

In her method of preparing the fried venison, Mrs. O'Fallon mentioned keeping the pan "hot before the fire," which is indicative of the cooking equipment and methods universal to all Missouri women in the early 1820s. The "stove" of both the American and French cooks was an enormous fireplace. A horizontal bar or crane at the top served to suspend kettles to boil or roast. Long rods with hooks removed pots from the fire and cooking spoons of necessity had extremely long handles.

Kitchens often were located in a separate building in the backyard, particularly if the household had a slave or servant to do the cooking. If a log cabin was the double variety -- two rooms separated by an open passageway and all under one roof -- the kitchen would be in one of the rooms. French cooks used a four-decker or ground oven, located in the back or side yard, where the hottest baking was done.

Wood was the universal fuel of Missouri wives in 1820 and 1821. Obviously, the availability of wood was no problem, but there were drastic disadvantages in the household which let its fire go out at night. Many a pioneer child would recall a bitterly cold trip to the nearest neighbor to borrow fire. Other methods of starting a fire involved flint and steel, if they were available, or a flintlock rifle. A little powder would be put in the lock and, as the hammer struck the flint, a spark would be produced and ignite the powder; the small flame, hopefully, could be transferred to the fireplace.

Menues of mid-Missourians in the early 1820s were not as varied as the foods served by French and American cooks in St. Louis. Foodstuff available to the log-cabin cook was much more limited, except in those areas of southeast Missouri bordering the Mississippi River where steamboats would stop.

Steamboat traffic on the Missouri River was just starting when the state was admitted to the Union. Without such river transportation, foods were confined to what was shot, trapped, caught or raised in the fields. Meats were wild game, such as deer, turkey, quail, dove and pheasant and, in some areas, elk. Cured bear meat known as "bear bacon," was a frequent part of the settlers' diet. From the many streams and rivers of Missouri, the settlers took crappie, bass, catfish, buffalo and pike. From gardens came potatoes, pumpkins, beans and squashes. From adjacent wooded areas dock and poke, "wild greens," and could be gathered.

Two food sources vital to twentieth-century farmers were scarce among the Missouri settlers of the 1820s. One of these items was poultry. It was not that chickens were not available; the shortage seemed to result from the depredations of wolves and hawks. Guarding the poultry apparently required time and effort that the family could not extend. In more populated areas, such as St. Louis, chickens could be more easily protected in backyard coops. A crop in short supply on the pioneer farm was wheat. There were frequent references to wheat as being difficult to grow. A letter written from Howard County noted that wheat "costs more to raise than buy ..."

Corn was the undisputed ruler of the table in Missouri's log cabins. Duden referred to corn as the:

Nurse of the growing population. It serves all domestic animals as food. The meal made of it, when cooked with milk, furnishes a very nourishing, wholesome and palatable food. If it is kneaded with the boiled pulp of the pumpkin ... a kind of bread can be made of it, which I prefer to wheat bread, especially if the dough has been made to ferment, by the influence of warmth, for twelve hours. Meal simply mixed with water or milk and baked without further ingredients makes a kind of bread which is too dry, however, if it is consumed with fatty foods it is eatable. The baking is one in covered, iron pots, which are placed beside the hearth and are covered entirely with burning coals.

What's The Law Leaving Scene Justified Act

By Jack Strauss, L.L.B.
Irwin got into an auto accident with Muscles McGirk. And, with his muscles rippling like a hoochy-koochy dancer, McGirk bounced out of his car and ran towards Irwin's automobile first. Afraid of being carried away feet first, Irwin jammed down on the gas pedal and drove off.

Left standing in Irwin's exhaust fumes, McGirk reported Irwin's departure to the police and, a short time later, he was picked up by a patrol car and charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

"Well, I certainly wasn't going to stay there," was Irwin's answer in court. "If I had, McGirk, who doesn't like me under normal circumstances, would have beaten the tar out of me. He's as strong as limburger cheese and twice as obnoxious."

"Being a coward," responded the prosecuting attorney, "is no defense in breaking the law. And, the law requires a person to stop when he's involved in an accident, with no exception. Consequently, Irwin is guilty by his own admission."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict cowardly Irwin of leaving the scene of an accident?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that even though the law may not allow for exceptions, law enforcement requires the use of common sense. If a person has reasonable grounds to believe he will suffer bodily injury if he stops at the scene of an accident, he need not stop. Particularly, when it's known by the other driver that he was the one involved in the accident.

(Based upon a 1971 South Dakota Supreme Court Decision)

Methods of grinding corn varied from the most simple mortar to the community mill -- a sophisticated industry for that early period. Families accomplished the grinding for their own use with a mortar made by burning a hole in the top of a tree stump and the pestle fashioned of a metal wedge tied to the end of a stick. Crude home mills were made from rocks which were easier on the workmen but had one distinct disadvantage. If the stone used was "too soft ... our meal had more or less grit in it ..."

When mills were established, settlers would bring their corn to be ground, and only to face a delay of two or three days, waiting their turn and then "pay toll by grinding as much for the still as they had for their own."

More finely ground corn was used for bread and the coarse for hominy which was a type of mush made by cooking the coarse meal and then combining it with milk. This hominy or mush was the main and sometimes only food in more primitive squatters' homes. A missionary shared such a meal, served by a middle-aged woman who prepared the mush, in a broken pot, the only article of furniture to be seen. After being set by to cool, the milk of a cow, who lived on the "range," was poured in, and the whole household gathered around the pot, and some with pieces of pewter, others with horn spoons, while the youngest spooned himself of the workmanship of nature in securing his share of the repast.

With reference to proposed rapid transit plan, isn't the actual reason for traffic problem is that so many people drive alone in their auto, few even use a carpool, and that jams the streets. If these people could be compressed into more compact units, don't we have enough streets and highways at present to get people promptly where they want to go? I have timed myself driving over present streets some 8 miles to downtown and make it in 20 minutes, if few cars on the street. With what might be called normal traffic, time is 35 minutes.

Many people say they would still use their personal cars, but would they do so, if they could ride public transportation for "free"?

I took a poll, names at random from various telephone exchanges and you will find results and poll questions asked enclosed. Bi State takes in from fares a little over 20 million a year and other money from advertising etc. so an allowance of around 30 million would allow an experimental "for free" trial. This is only a third of what a year's interest would be on 2 billion dollars which is about what proposed plan will actually cost.

Proposed bond issue is just a down payment. Then if most people will not ride the system for free or it needs some changes a lot of money will not be spent uselessly. The proposed bond issue should be defeated. It would also help if some double decker busses were built as they will carry twice as many people in same space as a single deck bus. Might even use some flange wheel cars for use on railroad tracks, if the full train crew rules were changed.

This would save the average rider at least $250 a year and those who drive a personal car perhaps $700 a year. As taxes this can be charged off on 1040 but not as cash paid for a ride to work. People I have talked to say a small fare, even a nickel, should be charged to keep those who might ride the bus as a pastime. This will take time of driver which costs money, time for accounting etc. and which today might be over the nickel taken in. Also it is against human nature as most of us are looking for something for nothing.

While a subway system has considerable appeal as a means of fast transportation, would people ride it especially after dark with crime as it is? Also would the stations be a spot of high crime? You will note from poll, many people afraid of subway especially after dark. Some years ago University City built a tunnel under Delmar at Kingsland. It has been filled in and perhaps today people are in less danger from an automobile in crossing Delmar than going under ground.

This is not offered as a tome on the subject but I believe it would prove the cheapest way to solve the problem and worth at least a trial. Glad to not only have your comments and suggestions but perhaps you can give it a little publicity and see what folks in general think of the idea. Between ideas on mass transit and new airport, the cost of these two projects alone will be more than the assessed valuation of all property in both the city and county.

Irwin Disputes

Claim Too Much Spent On Space

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP) — Apollo 15 astronaut Lt. Col. James B. Irwin took issue with those who say the United States spends too much on its space program in an interview preceding a speech Tuesday at William Jewell College.

Colonel Irwin said only 1.4 per cent of the national budget is spent on space and that includes such useful projects as communications and weather satellites.

He said the space program "helps create a better earth and also provides many jobs in the aerospace industries."

He says the instruments left there have made it a more useful satellite.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

Blessed is the man who endures trial, for when he has stood the test he will receive the crown of life which God has promised to those who love him. (James 1:12, RSV)
PRAYER: Heavenly Father, grant us the courage and power necessary to live according to Thy will. Amen.

Book Review

THE MAN CHASERS
by Ann Pinchot
384 pp.)

"Ann Pinchot knows what it's all about and what's more can write about it," said Cosmopolitan about THE MAN CHASERS to its readers. "THE MAN CHASERS is about young girls 'making it' in a big city," said Ann Pinchot about her new book to columnist Maggie Daly. "I wrote the biography for Lillian Gish (THE MOVIES, MR. GRIFFITH AND ME) and after all that Victorian virginity, I had to rebel and go to the extreme."

THE MAN CHASERS are six young women in New York City -- beautiful, single and unconventional. They live in a singles hotel, liberated from family ties; but still hooked on their urgent desire for fame, fortune and men. The secret lives of the six would flabbergast the folks back home if they could see them pursue the seductive promises of excitement in the big city, only to find that life often reneges on what it seems to offer so willingly.

THE MAN CHASERS is the stuff bestsellers are made of and Avon is launching it with a 500,000 copy first printing.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Saturday, Dec. 4, the 338th day of 1971. There are 27 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1851, a workers' rebellion broke out in Paris and was suppressed by Louis Napoleon. The event is known in French history as the "December Four Massacre."

On this date:
In 1783, George Washington had a farewell meeting with his officers at Fraunce's Tavern in New York.

In 1816, James Monroe was elected the fifth U.S. president.

In 1876, the New York Tammany leader, Boss Tweed, escaped from prison. He later was recaptured in Spain.

In 1942, American bombers struck the Italian mainland for the first time in World War II.

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Ismet Inonu held a wartime meeting in Cairo.

In 1944, British troops and armed units of the Greek leftist Olas party were fighting in the streets of Athens.

Ten years ago: U.S. military policemen halted a Soviet army sedan for an hour in the U.S. sector of Berlin, reportedly to retaliate for Communist harassment of U.S. Army cars in East Berlin.

Five years ago: Britain and Rhodesia were trying to work out terms to end the Rhodesian white government's rebellion.

Paperback books for children are growing in popularity not only because of their convenience but for their inexpensive as well.

Now is the time to check the holiday light strings, but we'll bet you wait till Christmas Eve, as usual.

Articles, Cash Found Missing

DEXTER — Dexter school officials are investigating what they believe to be the theft of a number of articles and a quantity of cash from the local high school over a period of several months. It was announced this week by school officials.

School officials estimated that the amount of equipment which is missing is valued at an estimated $2,000. In addition, approximately $500 in cash is reported to be missing. The money represented money from various "petty cash" funds in the school, it was stated.

Officials said that the items have been noticed as missing over a period of about 18 months.

School officials said that they had reason to believe that duplicate keys were used to enter the building during the nighttime hours.

No vandalism was reported, and school officials said that no doors were forced open at anytime during the period in question.

School officials said that an investigation of the matter had been underway for several months and that an inventory of the missing equipment and money had been kept.

School officials stated Thursday that as a result of the investigation the officials have suspended three students in the school for "violation of school policy." The three named by school officials as having been suspended for violation of policy are Don Allen, Barry Buchanan and Stuart McGhee.

The suspensions were made, pending further review and action by the Board of Education, Supt. T. S. Hill said in a statement issued Thursday.

School officials said that parents of the students were informed of the action.

It could not be learned whether or not further action will be taken, but school officials said that their investigation was continuing.

"It is possible," Supt. Hill said in his statement, "that other students may later be involved."

U.S. Leading Donator To U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — If your club operated like the United Nations, it would allow members almost three years to pay their dues, not punish those who ignored special assessments, and rely on donations for many of its biggest projects.

And if club members were as lax about meeting their financial obligations as many U.N. members are, your club would be at or near bankruptcy. The latest accounting shows that 96 of the 131 members are behind to some degree on their bills.

The United Nations is $189 million in debt. It is kept afloat only by money still available from bonds held by some member nations and by the patience of its creditors—mostly member nations who are owed for special services they have provided to the entire membership.

This was emphasized as the United States lost its bid to keep Nationalist China in the organization and the General Assembly voted to give the Peking government the U.N. membership allotted to China.

Why does the United Nations find itself in chronic financial hot water?

An inspection of accounts due gives some clues—the Soviet Union is listed as owing the organization $99 million.

But a more revealing indicator is the list of voluntary contributors.

The United States traditionally leads the list. Last year it made $152.7 million in voluntary contributions.

The Soviet Union, ranked by the U.N. Committee on Assessments as second only to the United States in its ability to provide financial support, made $4.5 million in voluntary contributions and ranked 12th on the voluntary list.

Money for the basic U.N. budget—$178.7 million in 1971 and probably $207.7 million in 1972—is sought from the "regular assessments" made on member nations.

Every three years, a committee decides what percentage of the budget each member should pay. It gives prime consideration to a nation's economic production then allows for a reduced obligation if a country has a low per-capita income.

The scale adopted for 1971-73 calls for the United States to pay the highest percentage—31.52. The Soviet Union is second at 14.18 per cent.

Twenty-one U.N. members whose assessments total $1 million or more are expected to pay 88.5 per cent of the regular financial support for the 131-member body.

REVEREND X.Y.Z.'S WEEKLY SUGAR-COATED BIBLE WISDOM PILL

Folks, meet the Reverend Xavier Yangtze Zanizbar (pseudonym), P. O. Box 252, Dexter, Mo., an accomplished Bible scholar, who reminds you the Bible is not based on folklore and legend, as is often falsely alleged, but on a written history, covering the period from man's creation to the Exodus of Israel from Egypt. (Apocryphal book of "Jubilees" - a history computed by Jubilee Years. A Jubilee Year was seven Sabbath (forty-nine) years, at which time all property mortgages were outlawed, while slaves and bondservants were freed. See Leviticus 25:9, 10, 31 and 27:17. The book was probably commenced by Adam or Seth and gives a lurid account of Adam's death, also tells us he had sixty-three children. See you anon!!!

Gunmen Rob, Kill, Kidnap And Wound, Still At Large

SIMMESPORT, La. (AP) — Two heavily armed gunmen killed one man, kidnaped two policemen and wounded two others during a crime spree involving a robbery, high speed chases and shootouts in rural eastern Louisiana, authorities reported.

Bloodhounds and a state police helicopter were called into service as authorities continued the search for the gunmen today.

"They're desperate and they'll kill anybody," said Sheriff F. D. Didier of Avoyelles Parish.

Authorities said the gunmen were armed with .45-caliber pistols, shotguns, submachine guns and a rifle.

The crime spree began Thursday night when the gunmen broke into the home of C. R. Laborde, a retired farmer who lives near Bordelonville. They tied up Laborde, his wife and two children and fled with $740, the family car, a shotgun and a rifle.

At Mansura, policemen halted the fleeing bandits, but the gunmen captured officers Addis Fruge and Douce Jacobs and took them hostage in their patrol car.

The first shootout took place when a police unit from Bunkie caught up with the gunmen. Fruge and Jacobs escaped during the gunfire but the gunmen escaped and made it to Evergreen.

At Evergreen, authorities said they killed a man tentatively identified as Thomas Matthews, wounded his wife and fled in the family car.

Johnny Wilmore, a Cheneyville policeman, picked up the pursuit, was hit in the chest by a shotgun blast. He was not seriously hurt and stayed in the chase.

About 25 police cars continued the chase out of Evergreen. Five cruisers lost the gunmen, who shot out the windows of two other police cars. Another cruiser stopped because of a burned-out engine and two others went careening into ditches when the fleeing men threw out smoke bombs that hampered visibility, authorities said.

The gunmen made it to about two miles north of here but headed out on foot after Bunkie Police Chief Leon Franklin shot out the rear window of their car.

Program Designed To Get Trees In Bootheel

Westaco Corporation and the Department of Conservation are again cooperating in a program designed to get more trees planted in the Bootheel Counties in 1972. Any county landowner who buys seedlings from the Missouri Department of Conservation can get as many free seedlings as he buys according to Harold Holland District Forester. The offer is made in 14 southeast Missouri counties. The company also will match, on a one-for-one basis, pine seed for direct seeding which is purchased from the Department of Conservation.

In addition, Westaco will give up to 500 free pine seedlings to each member of an organized youth group, and will give up to 5,000 free seedlings to any school wishing to start or expand a school forest. Neither the youths or schools need to buy seedlings to be eligible for the free seedlings.

In the past two years in which Westaco has offered this program, they have given over 200,000 free seedlings and over 75 pounds of pine seed (enough to plant 300 acres) to landowners in fourteen southeast Missouri counties.

The U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will share the cost of seedlings and planting with the landowners through the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP), details of which can be obtained from the County ASCS Director.

Dan Frisell of the Soil Conservation Service, Sam Atwell, Extension Area Agronomist and Harold Holland, District Forester are cooperating with Westaco and the Department of Conservation in advising landowners and youth groups of the details of the Seedling Program.

CAPE GIRARDEAU — seeks to convince people that they have won $500, but they must first donate $100 to the VA Hospital.

Officers said the two men are preying mostly on elderly persons, and thus far have succeeded in victimizing two people, one for $72 and the other for $135.

EBB LICENSED HAIR CONSULTANT IN SIKESTON MONDAY

WILL EXPLAIN HAIR PROBLEMS FREE

Louisville, Ky. Dec. 4 — Mr. M. J. Hornick will be back in Sikeston, Mo., Monday, Dec. 6. Now is the time to act on this great opportunity. Every man and woman now losing hair should take advantage of this FREE CONSULTATION.

GUARANTEED You will be given a written guarantee on a pro-rated basis from the beginning to the end. Naturally we could not give you such a guarantee if it didn't work.

CAN'T HELP Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. Ebb Hair Specialists cannot help those who are sick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

But, if you are not already sick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are sick bald and you are beyond help. So, if you still have hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair ... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

FREE CONSULTATION Just take a few minutes of your time on Monday, Dec. 6 between 1 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and ask the Desk Clerk for M. J. Hornick's room number.

There is no charge or obligation ... all consultations are private, you will not be embarrassed in any way.
